

Lodge Declares Senators Will Not "Obey Orders" of Wilson to Defeat Resolution

President in Letter to Sen. Hitchcock Urges Defeat of Lodge Resolution of Ratification—Declares it Calls for Nullification of Treaty—Lines Sharply Drawn as Senate Opens Ratification Fight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Defeat of the Lodge resolution of ratification of the peace treaty was urged by President Wilson in a letter to Administration Leader Hitchcock, which was laid today before a conference of democratic senators.

The president said the resolution did not provide for ratification, "but rather for the nullification of the treaty." "Will Not Obey the Order."

Immediately the president's letter became public, Republican Leader Lodge declared he did not believe the senate would "obey the orders" of the president, "who undertakes to command the senate to ratify the treaty without the reservations, which Americanize it and make it safe for the United States."

Thus the lines were sharply drawn when the senate went into session at noon to consider final ratification and to possibly bring to an end today the long fight over treaty.

Lodge and Hays Confer
Just before the senate convened, while the democratic senators were meeting, Republican Leader Lodge held a conference with Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee.

The decision of democratic friends of the treaty to vote against a ratification resolution containing the Lodge reservations was affirmed at the conference of democratic senators. Senator Hitchcock said enough democrats to insure its defeat had agreed to vote against the Lodge resolution.

No Compromise Plan Drafted
No compromise plan was drafted by the democrats but it was suggested that after the prospective defeat of the Lodge reservation, a committee of democrats would be appointed to confer with the republicans to that end.

Immediately the senate met, Senator Lodge formally presented the resolution of ratification containing the 13 reservations adopted by a majority of the senate.

Although the democratic stand was declared in republican quarters to have diminished the chances of a compromise, it was learned that a proposal to modify the preamble reservation of the committee so that the reservations would not have to have affirmative acceptance by the other powers had been under serious consideration by the republican leaders.

It was understood that the republicans had manifested a willingness to insert a proviso by which the reservations could be accepted by the other powers by their merely "not objecting to" them.

At the outset, Senator Lodge asked unanimous consent for an immediate vote on unqualified ratification. Administration Leader Hitchcock said the democrats preferred to wait until the Lodge resolution had been voted on. Senator Lodge then withdrew his request and the debate on the Lodge resolution began.

President Wilson's Letter
The president's letter addressed to Senator Hitchcock and dated yesterday, follows:

"My Dear Senator: You were good enough to bring me word that the democratic senators supporting the treaty expected to hold a conference between the final votes on the Lodge resolution of ratification and that they would be glad to receive a word of counsel from me.

"I should hesitate to offer it in any detail, but I assume that the senators only desire my judgment upon the all-important question of the final vote on the resolution containing the many reservations of Senator Lodge. On that I cannot hesitate for in my opinion the resolution in that form does not provide for ratification, but rather for the nullification of the treaty. I sincerely hope that the friends and supporters of the treaty will vote against the Lodge resolution of ratification.

"I understand that the door will then probably be open for a genuine resolution of ratification.

"I trust that all true friends of the treaty will refuse to support the Lodge resolution.

"Cordially and sincerely yours,
"WOODROW WILSON."

"PEOPLE MUST HAVE COAL"

Fuel Administrator Garfield Warns Coal Operators and Miners

"People of U. S. Need, Must Have, and Will Have Coal," He Declares

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Speaking with the authority of President Wilson's cabinet, Fuel Administrator Garfield told representatives of the bituminous coal operators and miners here today, that "the people of the United States need, must have, and will have coal," and as long as the government stands they will not be prevented from getting it by "anything the operators or miners may do."

Dr. Garfield explained that his purpose was to furnish the conference with the data which he would use in determining what wage advances, if any, agreed to by the operators and miners could be borne properly by the public.

Tighten Up Deliveries
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 19.—Tightening up of coal deliveries in the Pittsburgh district began today following the issuance of an appeal by the Pittsburgh coal distribution committee of the United States railroad administration, asking consumers to use the strictest economy in the consumption of the fuel.

The appeal was made when it developed that the district has been drawing heavily upon the supply of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Now this source has almost ceased to exist.

Miners in the Pittsburgh district are maintaining the attitude that the not return until they learn what develops in the miners' and operators' joint conference now in progress at Washington.

SUN'S SERVICE ENJOYED

Returns of Primaries and Other Stereopticon Features Made Big Hit

We don't like to blow about ourselves, but—

Well, were you in or around Merrimack square last evening any time between 8 o'clock and midnight? There sure was something doing down in the city's heart between those hours that kept it palpitating with excitement, cheering and all the other elements that go to make election or primaries night the picturesque time that it always is.

At one time it looked as though it would be impossible to drop a pin in between the hundreds that congregated in front of The Sun office to enjoy exclusive returns of a detailed nature on the contests that had been waged in the polling booths during the day. Every eye was on the screen erected in the window of The Sun's business office and not until the "Good Night" slide had been flashed did the crowd disperse.

By means of a stereopticon machine, a corps of expert slide writers and artists, and the usual election tabulating force, it was possible to give minute and detailed information on the progress of the various contests. The vote which each candidate received in the 23 precincts of the city was flashed on the screen as soon as received and in almost every instance the news was given in Merrimack square anywhere from 10 to 20 minutes before it was received at city hall.

Intermingled with the returns were pen sketches of the candidates, pictures designed to keep the crowd in a laughing mood and other entertainment features. As soon as the nominees were definitely decided, their names were announced. Evidently there was a large delegation of Gilbride and Salmon followers in the crowd and as each precinct was flashed and showed substantial votes for each candidate, the cheering could be heard for a half-mile radius.

A number of people who make it their custom to come to the square whenever returns are being given stated last evening that they never saw such an enthusiastic crowd, such excellent service and such an all-around good time as was provided last night.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT

"I adjudge you guilty of contempt and sentence you to 30 days in jail. This is the first time I ever sent a man to jail for contempt of court but you deserve the full punishment, for you have shown no respect for the court and no interest for your wife and two children," declared Justice King at the jury waived session of the superior court this morning when he disposed of the case of John F. Riley of this city, who was called to show cause why a petition for contempt filed by his

Dec. 5, as a result of yesterday's primaries when they were nominated by substantial leads in a field of five aspirants.

Mr. Gilbride's vote was 4012. Mayor Thompson polled 4568, a margin of 496.

The aldermanic nominees, from whom two will be elected were John F. Salmon, James E. Donnelly, George H. Brown and Charles J. Morse. Mr. Salmon polled a vote that was one of the amazing features of the results. No less than 5533 voters registered their approval of his candidacy. Commissioner Donnelly polled 3834 votes, Mr. Brown 3448 and Commissioner Morse 3148.

For school committee the four nominees were Thomas B. Delaney, James E. Markham, James H. Rooney and James E. Lyle. The vote was as follows: Delaney, 5235; Markham, 4488; Lyle, 3426; Rooney, 2527.

The closest fight of the primaries was between Commissioner Morse and Daniel Cosgrove for fourth place in the list of aldermanic nominees. Commissioner Morse led Mr. Cosgrove by only 39 votes. The early precincts placed Mr. Cosgrove in third place, surpassing at times the vote of Messrs. Donnelly and Brown. Commissioner Donnelly soon settled into second place and was not disturbed for the rest of the evening.

Mr. Morse, Mr. Brown and Mr. Cosgrove put up a merry fight for third and fourth positions and gradually Mr. Brown secured a potent grasp on third place. This left Mr. Morse and Mr. Cosgrove to fight it out for the bottom position and the commissioner finally won out. But not until the final precinct was in could Mr. Morse be said to have won. Premature reports went the rounds that Mr. Cosgrove had been nominated but these proved untrue.

The mayoralty fight produced frequent surprises. Mayor Thompson's nomination was generally conceded and Mr. Gilbride's aggressive campaign attracted attention that found reflection at the polls.

Mr. O'Donnell, twice elected mayor of the city, polled only 1015 votes. John war responsibility being conducted by a sub-committee of the national assembly.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg was the leading witness of the day. His testimony, however, was scarcely more interesting than that of Gen. Ludendorff and seemed less important than the reading of reports to Berlin by Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, under-secretary of state and former commercial attaché at the German embassy in Washington, and Dr. Hanfstaengl von Haimhausen, who was counsellor at the Washington embassy during the critical days of 1916 and 1917.

The field marshal declared Germany did not desire war and entered the struggle with her defensive strength impaired. He charged there was a lack of co-operation between the army and "interests at home," and asserted this had a vital effect upon the final issue of the conflict. Relations between the German high command and Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States were not cordial, it was developed, and it seemed an effort was made to treat him as a scapegoat by von Hindenburg and Ludendorff, who bitterly attacked him while giving their testimony.

When von Hindenburg and Ludendorff declined to appear at the afternoon session of the sub-committee an indefinite adjournment was taken, but it was indicated the former would be recalled at the next sitting on Thursday.

The field marshal and his chief aide during the war rode to the reichstag building behind a squad of newly organized Berlin military police. Along the route there was a cordon of military guards and machine guns were placed in the windows of buildings at various points. It was observed that even the former emperor, in his frequent rides to Berlin, was never given the armed protection which today was mobilized for the benefit of the former army leaders. The reichstag building was hedged about with a double cordon of armed guards and the public was not permitted to approach within a hundred yards of the building. Field Marshal von Hindenburg, wearing a green alpine hat, bowed and smiled as he passed into the building. He was loudly cheered. General Ludendorff and Dr. Hefferrich followed. An attempt was made by the crowd to rush forward, but it was driven back. Then there was renewed cheering following which the crowd sang national songs.

TO INVOKE THE RED FLAG ACT

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 19.—Federal and county officials will invoke the red flag act adopted at the recent special session of the West Virginia legislature to apprehend radical agitators in Marion county who conduct themselves as to remain without the pale of federal legislation. It was announced today in connection with the hearing of alleged radicals arrested in raids recently in the Fairmont district.

DRIVE TO COLLECT TAX

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Instructions to begin a special drive for collection of the tax on medicinal and toilet articles, were issued today to government agents by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Roper. Reports have reached him, Mr. Roper said, that large numbers of grocery, drug and variety stores have not been affixing the proprietary stamps on such articles as re-local politics. He was third man on the list. Jackson Palmer, who made an excellent impression on the stump, polled 1059 votes, enough to give him fourth place.

The contest for mayor was one of the hottest seen here in years and was perhaps the most potent reason for bringing out a heavy vote. For practically two weeks Messrs. Gilbride, O'Donnell, Donovan and Palmer were

Attempt to Kill Admiral Kolchak

LONDON, Nov. 19.—An attempt to assassinate Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian government which up until recently maintained its capital at Omsk is reported in a wireless despatch received here from Moscow. Hand grenades were thrown at Kolchak, six soldiers being killed and 12 wounded. The capture of Kursk, south of Orel, is reported in the despatch, the Bolshevik troops entering the city on Tuesday. In the course of operations resulting in the capture of Tobolsk, Irkutsk, Zerkalinsk, Petropavlovsk, Koltzhetoff, and Omsk, the despatch asserts the Bolshevik took 1000 officers and 27,000 men as prisoners.

DISCUSSING MOVIES

Manager Says Lowell Theatres Are Not Run as Sunday Schools

Declaring that the theatres of Lowell are not being run as Sunday schools and that local managers are powerless to improve the films shown here unless public opinion forces the producers themselves to change the nature of their output, Walter J. Nelson, president of the Lowell Theatrical Managers' association, whose membership includes every theatre manager in the city, has made an emphatic statement of the position of the men behind the local houses of entertainment in the discussion which has come up here during the past few weeks as the result of the appointment of a committee of the Lowell Federation of Churches to investigate the brand of movies being exhibited here.

"The entire question," Mr. Nelson says, "hinges on what is meant by the term 'clean' as applied to motion picture plays. You must remember that amusement is the business of the theatres. Objection has been made to certain bathing scenes which are shown in some of the comedies at the local theatres. Is there anything morally wrong in seeing a person attired in a bathing suit? If so, the Metropolitan park commission is lax in its duty for allowing people to patronize Revere beach, Nantasket beach and the various other summer watering resorts of this section. Hundreds of bathing suits are seen there daily in the summer.

"I am afraid that some of our critics are forgetting the fact that every picture that is sent out is reviewed by the national board of censorship, a body made up of intelligent and high-minded people. If we are going to be overwhelmingly Puritanical about this matter, why not close our art galleries? That would be the logical outcome of prohibiting theatres from showing films that are no worse than the paintings and statues shown in our museums and art galleries. Everything depends, you know, upon a person's own mental makeup. We can't be expected to cater precisely to the individual taste of every person who comes into our theatre. If we did, we should be running several thousands performances a day instead of two or three."

In a recent interview, Rev. Earle T. Favro, chairman of the committee appointed by the Lowell Federation of Churches to investigate the local films, was quoted as being authority for the statement that films which are censored in the state of Pennsylvania are sent to Massachusetts and allowed to be shown.

"This is absolutely impossible," Mr. Nelson declares. "When a picture is made a certain number of prints are sent to the central booking offices in each part of the country. These offices are known in the parlance of theatre men as 'exchanges.' There is an exchange for New England, one for the middle states, one for the south, etc. "When these prints are sent to a certain exchange they are confined to that section of the country. They are censored there, if there is a state censorship, and are distributed. At all times they are under the control of the exchange which knows every minute just where the various prints are. Hence, it is manifestly impossible that a picture which was sent to Pennsylvania to be distributed in the territory covered by that exchange, including Pennsylvania, Ohio and neighboring states, could come to Massachusetts. That isn't the way the motion picture business is carried on."

"I wish some of the people who are finding fault with our movies here in Lowell would look back five years and ascertain the pictures that were being exhibited then. Those who have taken the pains to do so tell me that they are amazed at the difference. I ask them why there has come about such an improvement, and the only answer to that question is public opinion backed by public action.

"If further improvement is wanted, it's up to the public to go out and get it. The theatre manager can't force the producer to change his policy if he is alone in his fight. The producer merely smiles and says if you don't like what we have, you know what you can do.

"But if the general public goes to the producer and tells him if he doesn't improve the quality of his pictures there will be trouble, the producer will sit up and take notice because he will then be touched at a vital point—his pocketbook.

"I have been asked how the public is going to do this. Well, we have our local women's censorship committee here. There are similar committees in most cities and towns. And practically every state in the Union has a women's state committee. If these committees would get together, form a national body and get enough of the public behind them to give them weight they could dictate the kind of pictures to be shown in every theatre in the country.

"You can't cure a stomach-ache by treating a person's head. You've got to get at the source of the trouble. If there is something wrong about the movies in Lowell, the trouble isn't in the manager's office, nor in Boston. It's in the plant where the pictures are made. And that's where the remedy must be applied. The theatre managers are willing to co-operate with the public in every way to bring about any improvement desired. But they are experienced enough in their profession to know how to go about the cure.

"I agree with the local school teachers that school children should be kept out of the theatres during school hours and the Lowell Theatrical Managers' association is doing everything it can, aided and abetted by the state laws, to keep the children away from the theatres during hours when schools are in session unless they are accompanied by their parents."

Mr. Nelson also dealt at length with the Sunday movie picture question, a subject that has been widely discussed and been given much thought both

TO ENFORCE THE "DRY" ACT

Circuit Court of Appeals
Issues Order Staying Execution of Injunction

Judge Brown Had Restrained
Federal Officials in R. I.
From Enforcing Act

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—The United States circuit court of appeals today issued an order staying execution of the preliminary injunction granted by Judge Arthur L. Brown, restraining federal officials in Rhode Island from enforcing the Volstead prohibition act.

The order of the court provides for a stay of enforcement until the supreme court gives a decision on a pending appeal from the federal court of the southern district of New York in a similar case, or until the circuit court of appeals takes further action.

The court, which was composed of Judges Bingham, Johnson and Anderson, in a statement issued with the order, said:

"On Nov. 13, the district of Rhode Island, in view of the probability that title one of the so-called Volstead act of Oct. 23, providing for the enforcement of war prohibition would ultimately be held unconstitutional and of irreparable damage that would thereby result to the appellants herein, issued a preliminary injunction forbidding enforcement of the act. The case comes before us on the petition of the appellants made under section 125 of the federal code, for the suspension of the injunction pending a determination of the appeal.

"Since this injunction was granted, cases raising the question of the constitutionality of this act have been assigned for hearing before the supreme court of the United States for Thursday, Nov. 20. We are of the opinion that the maintenance of the status quo pending final determination of this question requires us to stay the enforcement of the injunction during the pendency of the appeal or until otherwise ordered."

The injunction granted by Judge Brown of the Rhode Island federal court restrained the United States attorney and the internal revenue collector of that district from enforcing the Volstead act. United States Attorney Harvey A. Baker of Rhode Island brought the matter before the circuit court of appeals on a motion for a

ST. MARGARET'S PARISH REUNION

Members of St. Margaret's parish are looking forward to the seventh annual reunion to be held tomorrow evening in Associate hall. This year's affair will be unique in that it will take the form of a welcome home reception to the young men of the parish who saw service in the world war. A number of novel and interesting features have been arranged and competent committees under the general direction of Rev. Charles J. Galligan, pastor of St. Margaret's, have been hard at work for the past several months on plans to make tomorrow evening's affair a success.

The following program of entertainment will be carried out: March, "Markham's Orchestra"; Soprano solo, "Selected"; Miss Frances Tighe; Baritone solo, "Captain Mac"; Mr. George Kilwin; Dance, "La Belle Marie"; Miss Annabelle Perry; Soprano solo, "Break of Day"; O'Reilly; Miss Ellen Lynch; Baritone solo, "Smiling of Your Smile"; Mr. Thomas Tobin; Final, "Orchestra". John J. Kelly will be the accompanist of the evening and the entertainment will be followed by a grand march and general dancing.

CATCH THE WIDOW WITH THE GOLD

Today will be the last golden opportunity of catching the Widow by Proxy who has been successfully invading the larger stores of the city. Most of the advances have been made by members of the fair sex, due, no doubt, to the natural male tendency to always keep low when a widow sails their way. The various prize-winners have streamed into The Sun office each day to receive their gold pieces. It isn't every widow these days who will reward the person recognizing her as such. But as has been said before, this one is unusually generous. Miss Hazel Hoare of 461 Lawrence street was the lucky winner at the Bon Marche store yesterday. At the Boston Ladies' Outfitters, Mrs. F. J. Porteous of 61 Sixth street, managed to capture the widow. Of special interest to the women is the fact that the hats worn by the widow were supplied by the Broadway Wholesale Millinery Co. on Merrimack street. She is wearing coats loaned to her by the J. L. Challifoux Co.

NO CHANGE IN STRIKE SITUATION

There is no change in the strike situation at the Saco-Lowell shops, which went into effect yesterday forenoon and according to union leaders there is no indication at present for a settlement, for no steps have been taken so far for a conference between employees and employers. It was stated at the plant this morning that about 1000 of the 3000 employees are at work, while union officials claim that the exact number of men and women on strike is 1650. The plant is being kept in operation with a reduced crew, while picketers from the union are constantly on the job at both gates of the shops. There are five picketers and a captain at each gate and they are kept on duty three hours after which they are replaced by others. So far everything is running smoothly and no case of disorder has been reported. The strikers will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at their hall.

BOY BADLY INJURED
Six-year-old Edward Dowrey of 19 Roper street, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile driven by Edward T. Johnson of Wamesit late yesterday. The accident occurred on upper Lawrence street. The boy's jaw was fractured and his scalp severely cut. At St. John's hospital, where he was taken, it was said that he would probably recover.

AMBULANCE CASE
Charles Desky of North Chelmsford, employed at the Dagshaw company in Warren street, receive injuries to his right foot while at his work shortly before noon today. The ambulance removed to him to St. John's hospital.

THE FARM LABOR QUESTION ACUTE

State Chamber of Commerce
Secretary Presages Reduced
Cultivation

Shorter Day Greatest Menace
to Future of New England
Agriculture

Lewis E. MacBrayne, secretary of the Massachusetts chamber of commerce, while addressing the Farmers' Institute in Chelmsford this forenoon, declared that the efforts of radicals to create a six or seven-hour working day, while the farmer even at present cannot compete with the eight-hour day, stands as the greatest menace to the future of New England agriculture. The labor question is acute, he said, and the tendency is toward reduced cultivation for next year because of the fear that farm-help will be just as scarce then as now.

The Institute met at 10 o'clock at the Central Congregational church in Chelmsford Centre, with a fair sized gathering present when the morning session commenced. More came during the noon hour and the attendance at the afternoon meeting taxed the seating capacity of the meeting house.

Mr. MacBrayne, who has had wide experience in the supervision of war gardens through his agricultural connections for the state of New York during the war and who has made a thorough study of the economic side of farming, was introduced by E. P. Dickinson of Billerica, chairman of the Institute committee.

The labor situation came first in Mr. MacBrayne's talk and he freely admitted that it constituted a paramount issue in the consideration of profitable farming. He said that contrary to expectations, the boys who left the farms and towns to enter war service have not returned in full numbers, nor will they return and their places are becoming more numerous and they retard agriculture and lessen interest and activity.

Poultry raising in New England is fast vanishing, said the speaker. Again he emphasized the lack of adequate help in this phase of farming and added that as the result of the decrease in poultry raising in this section of the country, he now depend largely upon the west and northern New York state for our supply.

"I have talked with a number of seed men during the past few weeks," said Mr. MacBrayne, "and to a man they say that there has been an alarming decrease in the number of calls and orders for vegetable seed for next year, but that grass seed orders have increased tremendously. This surely shows that the farmers of New England realize the precarious labor situation and are afraid that no improvement will be noted next summer. Therefore, they will greatly diminish their acres of cultivation and sow much of that land to grass.

"The farmer cannot compete, with the city employer who operates the 8-hour day. Three dollar a day farm hands are the rule, but once a man drifts away from the country it is becoming harder and harder to get him back. In fact, he may be set down as lost to agriculture. If the farmer cannot compete with the eight-hour day, how can he hope to match the six and 7-hour day promulgated by radical labor men?"

"The question now comes, where will the farmer turn for help? The situation is a critical one. Junior clubs for canning and amateur farming some day hope to be able to send some of these boys and girls out to the farm, but it will be a slow process. It has been said that the so-called 'white collar' men, men who are in professions and offices, must come to the farmer with offers of help if agriculture is to continue. That is a broad statement and would not be successful unless it be brought about through energetic campaigning.

"Franklin Lane, secretary of the Interior, has said of New England that as yet our land has not been discovered as far as the economic value of the soil is concerned and that while the west and middle-west rise on an agricultural wave of prosperity, New England stagnates and shrinks because soil opportunities here have not been discovered."

The women of the Central church served dinner in the vestry at 1.30 o'clock and the afternoon session commenced at 2.30. The principal address was given by Rev. Harold Dale of Billerica, who spoke on "Home Reading." He illustrated his talk by reading from current magazines and books in an effort to show the proper and profitable way of spending leisure hours.

OPENING FIGHT FOR PRESIDENT

So. Dakota Will Hold Primary on Jan. 1 When Candidates Must Be Known

Primaries in This State April 23 to Select Delegates to Convention

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 19.—Just six weeks from today the various statements of the rival political parties who aspire to the presidency of the United States must make known their intentions, if they desire to compete for the ten delegates to their respective national conventions from South Dakota.

This probably will be news to most, if not all, of the candidates themselves, but the fact is that under the South Dakota presidential preferential primary law candidates who desire to participate in the primary in that state must file their petitions not later than the first day of the new year.

While the South Dakota primary which is fixed by law for March 23, is the third that will be held in the coming year the last day for filing petitions there is earlier than in any other state.

The South Dakota law also is unique in that it requires candidates to file a personal declaration of principles and a statement defining "the issue" of the campaign in not more than eight words. It is also provided in the South Dakota law that candidates for the presidency who seek the state's endorsement in the primary must engage in at least one public debate in the state, either in person or by designated representative.

Many students of politics had expected that 1920 might witness a general presidential preferential primary race, but this has been prevented by constitutional limitations which precluded the passage by congress of a law applicable to the whole country. When efforts to frame such national legislation were made prior to the war it was discovered that a law fixing a common primary date would be impossible without the consent of all the state legislatures.

Agreement by the 43 states upon a common primary date was not considered practicable without the submission of an amendment to the federal constitution which, many believe, would encroach upon the rights of the states to enact their own election laws.

While for this reason no presidential primary legislation has been proposed in congress, some 21 of the states have, in one form or another, made provision for choosing candidates for presidential nominations in a popular manner. The majority of the states, however, still adhere to the old state convention system of selecting delegates to the national convention.

As the dates of these conventions in 26 of the states are yet to be fixed by the state political committees of the respective parties, they do not figure in the public interest at this time. Only in Wyoming is the convention date fixed by law. In those states where primary dates are fixed by law, however, and in particular where, by enforced petition or otherwise, presidential aspirants are required openly to declare their intentions, the interest will be great.

The first state presidential primary will be held in New Hampshire on March 9 next. Although there is no direct vote for presidential candidates in that state in the primary, delegates may file statements of preference, if they so desire.

The first really direct vote for presidential candidates will occur in North Dakota when the primary is held in that state on March 16. There candidates may have their names placed on the primary ballot through petition of not less than 500 voters of their party. March 1 is the last day upon which these petitions may be filed. The next primary date is that of South Dakota heretofore referred to.

On April 5 the Michigan primary will be held. At least one hundred qualified voters of the state must sign a candidate's petition before 12 o'clock noon on March 1 in order that the candidate may participate in the primary. Delegates to the national convention are not selected at this primary in Michigan, but at a state convention.

The following day, April 6, New York and Wisconsin hold presidential preference primaries. Delegates are selected at the primary in New York, but no preference is indicated on the primary ballot. In Wisconsin, however, at least one per cent. of the party electors in at least six counties (not less than one per cent. nor more than ten per cent. of the total vote in the state) must file petition for the presidential candidate not later than March 6. The delegates are chosen in the primary and candidates for delegate may file a statement of principles or presidential choice, in not exceeding five words, which will be printed on the ballot.

The Illinois primary comes next, on April 13, at which delegates from congressional districts to the national convention will be selected. Delegates at large from the entire state of Illinois are named in a state convention held on May 10, when the preference indicated in the preceding presidential primary is supposed to be ratified. Under the Illinois law petitions placing the name of the presidential candidate on the primary ballot must be signed by not less than three thousand nor more than 5000 electors affiliated with the candidate's party. The last day for filing these petitions is March 3. Delegates running in the district primaries must state their choice or declare "no preference." Presidential candidates may disavow a candidacy for delegate whereupon the candidate for delegate is not certified.

The Nebraska primary will be held on April 20. At least one hundred voters from each congressional district must sign a presidential candidate's petition not later than March 20. Presidential candidates are not required in Nebraska to file a personal declaration nor is the presidential preference for candidates for delegates indicated on the primary ballot.

In Montana the presidential primary is fixed for April 23, the petitions of presidential candidates requiring the signatures of one hundred electors in one-tenth of the precincts in seven counties. The last day for filing petitions is April 2. Delegates elected at the primary are not required to indicate their presidential preference.

Three primaries are scheduled for April 27, in Massachusetts, New Jersey and Ohio. In the Bay State there is no direct vote for presidential candidates, but delegates may express preference, which statement of preference must be approved by the presidential candidate before 5 p. m. on the last day of filing, which is March 23. The presidential preference of the candidates for delegates is indicated on the primary ballot.

ARMED POSSES HUNT NOTORIOUS BANDIT

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 19.—Armed posses and a troop of cavalry from Fort D. A. Russell today searched the hills and brush lands in a wide area around Medicine Bow for William Carlisle, notorious bandit. Last night a man believed to be Carlisle robbed passengers on a Union Pacific train of $250 and escaped, wounded by a shower of bullets.

The man boarded the train at Rock River, by smashing a vestibule window, fired one shot through the roof of a tourist sleeper to terrorize passengers and forced all but "old men, women, children, soldiers and sailors" to contribute.

As the bandit stood in the vestibule waiting for the train to stop, a passenger fired at close range and the bandit is believed to have been hit. Blood was found on the pistol he dropped in his hurried escape.

Authorities were positive from the descriptions that the bandit was Carlisle who escaped from the state prison at Rawlins, last Saturday.

Carlisle was captured in 1916 following a series of train robberies and sentenced to prison for life. He was considered a model prisoner, buying Liberty bonds and subscribing to the Red Cross from his savings. Because of this, his sentence was commuted last September to 25 to 60 years.

Diseases That Come From Neglected Teeth

Science knows now that diseased teeth in growings cause rheumatism, heart trouble, indigestion; in children, frequent colds, anemia, eye affections. As epidemics enter through the mouth, such children are often victims of influenza and spinal meningitis.

Mouth cleanliness is necessary for everybody the year around. That does not mean "pyorrhea cures" or other mysterious articles. Pyorrhea is unknown among the young and children should not be allowed to use any preparation claiming to cure this disease.

Unlike these, Albond Dental Cream is simply calcium carbonate, saponified and mixed with the well-known antiseptic oils of cloves, cinnamon and eucalyptus, which authorities like Drs. Prinz and Long declare makes an effective and safe composition for women and children. It is just as good for you, and should be in your home. A tube lasting five weeks can be bought guaranteed at any drug store.—Adv.

Even the hardest play can't wear them out as much as the washboard does

SLIDING for base—
Shinny—marbles—
duck on a rock—how that boy does grind the dirt right into his clothes!

Just soak the dirty little play garments overnight in the bubbling cleansing Rinso suds or for three hours in the morning.

Then you rinse them! And they are clean! Rinso has done all the work, it has loosened all the dirt. Only the most soiled spots, cuffs, knees of little trousers, will need a light rubbing between your hands.

All that work is saved—and the clothes are saved, too. For the Rinso granules are so rich in cleansing value that they loosen all the dirt while the clothes soak, yet they are so pure they cannot do the slightest injury.

Even in cold water Rinso cleans in the same wonderful way.

Order Rinso from your greener today and follow the easy directions on the package. One package does a whole week's laundry. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass. (Makers of Lux.)

By the time Monday comes around there's a great heap of grimy little garments—garments that used to need hours of rubbing and scrubbing and boiling before they would "come clean."

That weekly rubbing on the washboard wore out the fabric faster than the hardest of play could have done.

Make them last twice as long.

You need no longer waste your strength and wear out the children's clothes on the ruinous washboard.

You just soak your clothes clean with Rinso, the new form of soap in granules. You do away with all the old boiling and hard rubbing.

MADE HEN FRUIT PAY

Why... "Pay George" for Eggs When You've a Back-yard?

BY E. AIRD FARMER
I was tired of "letting George" raise eggs for my table, while I worked at something that better fitted my talents.

Like thousands of other city and town dwellers, I had thoughtlessly accepted the proposition that some men were put here to clerk in stores or work in factories, while others were specially designed by Providence to raise chickens.

I had the notion that Mr. Professional Poultryman could raise eggs cheaper and better than I, or he would not be doing it. So I'd pay out my wages for his cheaply-raised eggs, and would profit on the deal as well as he. Then—eggs went up so high that I began to do some thinking.

Why Pay "George"?

I began to doubt whether the old "division of labor" was always profitable. Looking over my neighbors' backyards, I was struck with the fact that they, too, had abandoned the old-time backyard "egg factory," and were paying "George" to raise their eggs for them.

They—like myself—were slipping "George" 80 cents to $1 a dozen! And the eggs weren't any better than amateur eggs, as far as I could see. Hardly as fresh. "George" would slip a cold storage one in occasionally. So I decided that, as far as I was concerned, the professional-poultry-magnum should be out of a job. I'd raise my own eggs and see if I couldn't beat that 80 cents or $1 a dozen.

Of course, I'd be "out" what little time it cost me. But I had a half-hour a day to give away, and I wouldn't have to pay any wages or profits to "George."

Figures Tell It

Here's what I can show today, after 10 months of egg raising:
Began with 11 hens and two roosters—for two pens with different breeds—the best stock I could buy of the State College of Agriculture.

This was my strategy—heavy Rhode Island Reds for winter laying, light Anconas for summer. They cost me $17.

Have spent for feed $52.50. Bought 25 baby chicks (fine stock) for $6. Total outlay, $75.50.

For this outlay—and my labor—I have received:
Ninety-five dozen eggs, the best in the world. Figured at 60 cents a dozen, $57.

By the way, the market price during those 10 months was down to 50 cents for one month, then 60 for a month, then 65, then 75, then 55, and is now $1. So my figure of 60 cents is "way too low."

Have you had 95 dozen eggs in the last 10 months?

Then I have had 17 chicken dinners—nearly two a month—with chickens costing 45 cents a pound on the market. Figuring at $1.50 each, $25.50. I sold 11 chickens for $23. Egg settings, $3. Total income, $108.50.

Total Profit, $71

Take away the $75.50 expended, that makes a net profit of $33.

Meanwhile, my "capital stock" has increased. I started with 11 hens and two roosters. Today I have 13 young pullets, just beginning to lay, two roosters and 8 chicks, young stock—valued conservatively at $33, where I began with $17.

This brings up my total profit to $71—an average of $7 a month. And my "factory" is "bigger and better than ever."

Now, this is nothing exceptional. I've had as "tough luck" as anybody. I am an amateur hen-man, not an expert. Two of my best laying hens died without giving any advance notice. Likewise 16 of my young chicks. I also had some poor hatches. Anybody can do just what I've done.

Meanwhile, when I read in the paper that "George" has boosted the price of eggs again, I grin. My two kids get eggs to eat just the same.

Why not try it yourself and let "George" go chase himself?

ON MISSION TOUR DOWN IN MAINE

The following relative to Rev. Louis Bachand, O.M.I., of this city, who is now on a mission tour in Maine, is from the Star Herald of Presque Isle, Me.:

A mission began in the Church of the Nativity, Sunday, Nov. 2, for the women of the parish only, and closed on the following Sunday. Each day during the women's mission there were masses at 6 and 7:30; in the evening at 7:30 there were, the rosary, instructions; and the sermon on one of the important truths of the Catholic faith, closing with the benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament. After the O Salutaris, the large bell in the Nativity church tolled nine times for the Catholic women, if any, who failed to make the mission. The church during the women's mission was taxed to its capacity and Fr. Hayes was obliged to put in extra chairs to accommodate the large gathering. At the close of the women's mission Sunday afternoon "The Promulgation of the Law," that is, the 10 commandments of God and the six commandments of the church were given, while each woman held in her hand a blessed candle, which candles, afterwards were given to the shrine of the Mother of God, while the altar of the Blessed Sacrament was beautiful with lights and flowers. In the evening at 7:30 the men's retreat was opened and continues until next Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Since Fr. Hayes came to the parish there have been given three missions—the first in October, 1917, by the provincial of the Marist order, Very Rev. Fr. De LaChapelle, the second in 1918, by Fr. Dugal of the Redemptionist order, and the third, the retreat now going on.

Never in the history of the parish of the Nativity has there been such an outpouring of people, as are attending the retreat.

The father in charge of this retreat is the Rev. Fr. Bachand, O.M.I., one of the youngest of our priests and one of the most eloquent preachers ever heard here.

Over 1100 people so far have made the retreat.

Fr. Bachand will preach a special sermon on the Catholic church, at the high mass next Sunday, to which all are invited.

DANCING CONTEST HELD AT ASSOCIATE HALL

The first preliminary in the big dancing contest to determine the championship of the Merrimack valley for $200 in prizes was held in Associate hall last evening, with about 300 couples in attendance. The event proved a great success and all thoroughly enjoyed a remarkable exhibition of the terpsichorean art.

Seven couples competed and the task of selecting the winners proved a most difficult one. Finally, after a close and careful study of the many intricate evolutions and the artistic execution, four couples were eliminated and the three remaining couples held the attention of the judge and the crowd for some time. They gave a wonderful exhibition and to select the best couple was a task that only an expert could decide.

But Mr. Bernard Horan, who officiated as judge, showed excellent judgment in the opinion of the majority, and named James Jones, and his partner, Miss Mae Nolan, for first place, George Wayne and Miss Rose Parker for second place and Joseph Mahoney and Miss Lowney for third. The decision brought vigorous applause. The winning couple was presented a ten dollar note.

The winning couple also will be eligible to compete in the grand final event for the big prizes on Tuesday evening, Dec. 2.

The couples finishing second and

Mental Work Needs a Stomach

Great Mistake to Imagine You Can Work Better and Faster on the Starvation Plan. Eat What You Like But Follow With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

Mental work uses up energy fast. And energy comes from food. To eat little or nothing in order to do more work is a fallacy that has created an army of dyspeptics. A better plan is to eat the regular portions of food such as make up the average meal and follow each meal with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. You will then get a double benefit—energy from food and sociability with meals, for as a rule, the light eater, or those who skip meals, get into a bad habit, a rut, of hermit-like isolation. Do not be afraid of gasiness, sour stomach, heartburn, heavy feeling or coated tongue after meals. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets arouse the stomach to secrete the juices necessary to relieve these troubles that so frequently distress the mental worker. They contain harmless ingredients which act with an alkaline effect, so you may eat the rich things of the banquet or the savory sausage for breakfast with utmost freedom.

Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store, eat freely of what you like and you will do more and better work than on a skimp diet. Try this plan.—Adv.

The American Public does not believe all it reads. It insists on being shown.

When Swift & Company says its profits are only a fraction of a cent per pound, many believe we are not telling the whole story—that there are hidden profits.

Here Are The Facts:

Our net profit on our entire business for the year 1918 amounted to only 1.76 cents per dollar of sales, or less than one-half cent per pound, and

1. Included profits from hides and all other by-products.
2. Included profits from all sundry side-lines.
3. Included profits on all subsidiary corporations.
4. To sum up—it included the entire profit from every source of revenue in which Swift & Company has any interest. There are no other profits.

Furthermore our accounts have been checked and certified annually by leading public accounting firms.

Swift & Company is sincerely trying to get the facts before the public. If you have any questions regarding our business—write us—and we will do our best to answer them. In discussing the packing business be sure you have the facts and that you are not unintentionally spreading misinformation.

If you get the facts we have no doubt as to the verdict.

FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE

With winter at hand and strikes of various kinds in progress, here and elsewhere, what is the outlook for the average family? This is perhaps a question that comparatively few put to themselves, even though circumstances may call for unusual precautions.

We have been saved from a calamitous coal strike by prompt government interference; we have seen the steel strike carried on for weeks without any serious effect on local enterprises; but as to the final outcome of both these strikes, only those on the inside can foretell. Indeed it is probably true that the strikers themselves have but slight idea what may result if they persist in remaining out in opposition to the government appeal.

There are many other strikes in progress in various parts of the country and while none of them may assume very great proportions from a national standpoint, yet as a whole they help to curtail production on which the prosperity of this nation at present depends. But for us as a city a comparatively small local strike will have a worse effect than a very great strike at a distance. What this city and this country need at the present time is industrial peace, an end of strikes and an increase of production that will pull down the high cost of living and promote prosperity.

Lowell has been comparatively free from ruinous labor strikes, and it is hoped that the mutual efforts of employer and employed will be exerted to prevent such conflicts in the future. We do not believe the radicals have control in local labor unions and that being the case, there is hope that good judgment will prevail and that on both sides there will be a readiness to compromise rather than hold out for the most favorable terms of settlement.

Just at present it is very hard for any man who has a family to support to go out on strike. Indeed it would be cruel to coerce any such man to go on strike if he has no means of support but his weekly earnings. The high price of food, of fuel and of clothing renders it very difficult for the family man to make both ends meet even when working steadily; but if idle, he must soon face starvation.

With industrial troubles eliminated or settled by arbitration, Lowell would be fairly prosperous as things go at present, even during the coming winter. It is to be hoped, therefore, that all the parties concerned in such disputes will avoid strikes as far as possible, using peaceful means where practicable to secure the desired changes.

This nation is face to face with one of the greatest industrial and economic opportunities in its history if industrial peace can be maintained so as to allow increased production in raw material and in the varied lines of manufacture so greatly needed both at home and abroad.

It is only through industrial peace and increased production that we can establish profitable trade with foreign nations, now anxiously awaiting to get our products and unable to find what they want elsewhere. Anything that holds up production now will injure us not only at home but abroad and in the future as well as at present. It is imperative that we grasp the opportunity that is now knocking at our doors.

THE FATE OF THE TREATY

It appears that France is greatly alarmed at the prospect of the defeat of the treaty as a result of the extreme attitude of the republicans under the leadership of Senator Lodge. The chief objection is raised to the provision requiring the assent of three of the allied powers to the reservations adopted. It appears that if the republicans insist upon the preamble to the reservations the result may defeat the treaty.

The League to Enforce Peace of which former President Taft is president, has entered a strong protest against one of the reservations which would interfere with the policy of arbitration between the United States and different nations as provided for under existing treaties. They fear that the adoption of such a reservation so far from promoting the cause of peace, would seriously interfere with the policy of arbitration that has been successfully followed in recent years.

It is now announced that President Wilson will pocket the treaty if the radical reservations be adopted. The treaty question would then remain in statu quo and unless a new treaty were negotiated there would be no final settlement with Germany. The declaration of a state of peace, by congress would not settle any of the multiplicity of important questions pending between this country and Germany.

It appears that all the republican senators including "the mild reservationists" are bound by a pledge to vote for the Lodge reservations, and then for the resolution of ratification embodying those reservations. After that they will be free to vote as they please. Senator Lodge holds that if ratification with reservations fails of passage the treaty cannot later be voted upon without reservations.

It is now regarded as a certainty that the treaty so loaded with reservations will not be ratified. It is the intention, however, of the republicans, if they possibly can, to cast the responsibility for defeating ratification upon the friends of the treaty. Senator Hitchcock, however, will insist upon a vote on the treaty without reservations. In all probability both votes would fail of the necessary two-thirds majority.

It would then be in order to bring about a compromise by which the treaty would be saved, as it is hardly possible that two-thirds of the senate would want to kill the instrument outright.

ROUND-UP OF THE REDS

The arrest of two alleged anarchists in this city by the federal officers indicates how general and complete is the campaign against the Reds now being conducted by the Department of Justice.

It is the only sure method of coping with this evil. Too long we have tolerated the enemies of our government to carry on their revolutionary work, even to the extent of preaching it openly on our public streets.

The activity of the federal officers places a new duty upon the shoulders of our local police and other public officials. It is that of active co-operation. The police should keep an eye out for these foreign agitators who come here occasionally to harangue their followers and stir them up in opposition to the government. It is incumbent upon the municipal council or perhaps the department of public safety to provide an ordinance or police rule under which nobody will be allowed to use the public streets or commons for the purpose of addressing public audiences without a permit.

This would also prevent candidates for office from speaking in public. Certainly, unless they secure a permit. It is but a short time since we had socialist candidates haranguing the people against capital, the wage system and in favor of a different form of government. That kind of business is to be stopped in Lowell and in every city in America.

"Ah! but where is your boasted liberty of speech?" these marauders will ask. We reply there is no liberty of speech permissible here for those who talk treason. The socialists, the anarchists, the I. W. W.'s and the Russian Bolsheviks are to be barred from the use of our public streets and some of them are to be denied a residence on American soil. They are to be sent to the ideal paradise of Bolshevism in Russia.

It is the duty of every citizen, therefore, to aid the government in its round-up of the Reds and of every other dangerous element that may be found operating in our city.

COMBATING THE BANDITS

How to combat the auto bandits who rob banks is a pressing problem for the police authorities of the nation. The robbery of the Randolph savings bank and the safe retreat of the thieves with about $36,000, is a matter that must arouse the police of the state and alarm some of the banks. It is usual in such cases to cut the telephone wires. Is it not possible to have a secret alarm connecting banks with a police station to be rung in emergencies?

The Randolph robbers might have been foiled by such a device. An underground wire would serve the purpose with a means of ringing an alarm at the police station, merely by pressing a button concealed from view. This arrangement might cost some hundreds of dollars, but it might help in catching the bandits if not in preventing them from committing the robbery.

AMERICANIZATION

The state board of education has organized its Americanization department and is sending out to school departments and other organizations letters dealing with the essential features of the work. Mr. John J. Mahoney, principal of the local Normal school, is now devoting all his time to this work and is having classes organized according to their needs as beginners, intermediates and advanced in the work of learning English. When the board's conditions are complied with by cities and towns the expenditure will be met by the state except for illiterate minors who are supposed to be taught in the regular schools, rather than in special classes. Local school departments are allowed to work under the new act with a good deal of discretion as to details inasmuch as conditions vary with the locality and the pupils to be instructed.

The state board, however, is entering upon this work of Americanization with a degree of enthusiasm that bespeaks good results.

PRIMARY RESULTS

In the returns of the primaries appears the slate made out for city election by a majority of the voters. In some points it is different from most of the slates and the predictions given out before the returns came in; but although it has a few surprises, it must be accepted as representing the majority. The sifting process has been gone through; if the electorate has made a mistake in the nomination of any particular candidate, the municipal election will offer an opportunity of correction.

Under the present plan of our municipal campaigns, it appears that the man who can make the best speech has a decided advantage, provided the people believe that he is honest and sincere in what he says. Inasmuch as speech making is not a necessary qualification for any of our public officials, with perhaps the exception of the mayor, the question arises whether it is wise to judge of candidates on their oratorical ability.

Hon. Charles S. Hamlin is mentioned for the vacancy caused by the appointment of Secretary Glass of the treasury department to the senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Martin of Virginia. Mr. Hamlin is a member of the federal reserve board and was its first governor. He is an old time democrat and thoroughly versed in all questions of state and national finance.

Without the United States, the League of Nations will go on, but it will not by any means command the respect nor will it ever attain the international influence it would have with the United States as a member.

The Esch railroad bill has been passed by the house, and now it remains to be seen whether it will meet favor by the senate or whether it will be sternly opposed by the railroads. It is a compromise between the Plumb bill on the one hand and the Cummins on the other.

Congress should make clear its intention to continue the Sugar Equalization Board during next year as otherwise the profiteers will put up the price of sugar to unprecedented figures.

Formerly the hot primary fights insured united action by democrats on election day; but since the democratic label has been removed, such fights leave their sores and seriously handicap the chances of the nominee's success.

The Bolsheviks of Russia have begun to nationalize the children who are to be taken from the parents and reared under the benign influences of Trotsky and Lenin in compliance with the atheistic doctrine, "No God, no Master!"

Jimmie Bourke, the mercury fool A. P. messenger, still holds the title Lowell's lightweight voter. Jimmie weighs less than 90 pounds, minus his overcoat. "I'm not as big as Mike Markham or some of the rest of 'em," quoth Jimmie, "but my vote counts one, just the same."

Money experts point to the rise in value of silver and insist the American silver dollar now is worth 100 cents. But you can't buy any more with a silver dollar than a paper dollar and that's worth about 60 cents in the store.

A HOOMERING

"When a bit of sunshine hits ye, After the passing cloud,
When a bit of laughter hits ye, An' ye'r spine is feelin' proud,

Such Is Life

Kings may come and kings may go, princes, too. Millionaires may live and millionaires may die. Baseball pennants may be won or lost, and stocks go up or down, while still the world wags on—

But let the coal miner lay down his pick and the earth shivers! Let the farmer loaf and the hungry millions are leaders.

Yet the world applauds its kings, bows low before its millionaires and yells itself hoarse over its Ty Cobbs.

The Final Test

"I thought you said this bathing suit was in fast colors," said Blinks, indignantly, to the hostler of whom he had bought his suit that morning.

"Yes, sir, that's what I said," returned the hostler.

"Well, every wretched stripe on the thing has come off on my back," reported Blinks.

"Ah, but wait until you try to get 'em off your back," smiled the hostler, suavely. "Then you'll see."—London Tit-Bits.

How It Happened

"Well, I'll tell you," said a citizen of Sandy Mush, Ark., in reply to the inquiry of a neighbor. "I was over to Cattawampus yesterday, and inside of two hours there were three fights, two runaways, a fire, a lady horse-whipping a gent for something or nuther, and a couple of airplanes sailing over the town. And trying to get into the fights, keep out of the runaways, run to the fire, watch the lady, and keep my eyes fixed on the airplanes, I got knocked over four or five times and tramped on considerable, and I don't reckon my neck will work precisely right till the Lord knows when. How them folks in town manage to keep healthy with all that hooraw going on amongst 'em is more than I can figger out. Burhugh, if two hours of that fast living didn't mighty nigh ruin me!"—Judge.

His Last Alliance

An officer in a company of negro infantry was walking along a miry French road one day when he caught a glimpse of a drooping figure in khaki. The negro, with his entire equipment strapped to his broad back, was sitting beside the road, chin in hands and elbows on knees.

Hearing the approaching footsteps, the black man looked up, rose slowly and saluted without any snap. "What's the matter with you?" asked the officer.

"Ah'm thired," answered the dusky one.

"Tired of what?"

"Thired of dis heah wah!"

"But you're fighting for your country, the country we all love. Don't you love your country?"

"Yes, suh, Mr. Cap'n. Ah love mah country, but doggone me if Ah evah gits outen dis heah wah I ain't nevah gonna fall in love with apthah country as long as Ah live."—The Home Sector.

Drat the World!

(Copyright, 1919, N.E.A.)
Oh, drat the world! It won't keep straight;
I talk to it and show it how
And then, as though to celebrate,
It breaks out in another row.

I preach to it of brotherhood;
It seems to wonder what I mean.
Then, in its effort to be good,
It bumps its brother on the bean.

I teach it words of sweetened song,
Or prove, by strict arithmetic,
That violence is rude and wrong,
And just then someone throws a brick.

I warn it greed cannot succeed
And avarice bears bitter fruit;
It nods and smiles as though agreed,
And strips me to my union suit.

I show it none can live alone,
So we must trust our fellowmen;
It bows its head and says amen,
And not a soul will trust me then.

So drat the world! it won't go straight,
For though my lessons have been plain,
It seems to just hang off and wait
For me to set a good example!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Murder was once a job for strong arms but now any weakling with a $5 revolver can become a killer. So said a police officer with whom I stopped to chat for a moment today. He was discussing some of his experiences back in the days of a generation or more ago when he was a "youngster" on the force. The favorite weapons of the bad men in those days were hammers, axes and sand bags, he said. Some of them preferred a knife and some trusted to revolvers to carry out their designs, but the great majority preferred the "strong arm" method of disposing of their victim. Most criminals place their trust wholly in an automatic now, he declared, except in rare instances.

I got a peek at a 1920 calendar the other day and incidentally garnered a number of interesting facts relative to the year that will be born in less than two months. In the first place it will be noted as leap year, there being 29 days in February in 1920 instead of the usual 28. For another thing it will be presidential year, another quadriennial feature. Most of the holidays will be celebrated on Monday during the coming year, although New Year's day itself, a legal holiday in Massachusetts, will fall on Thursday, February 22, Washington's birthday, will fall on a Sunday and will be celebrated the following Monday, April 19, Patriots'

Exhausted at sixteen, regains strength with RED PILLS for Pale and Weak Women.

MISS EMMA MESSIER

I am sixteen years of age, and last year I was excessively weak, owing to the fact that I was forced to start working at a very early age, with the result that I soon became exhausted. My mother, who had great confidence in the efficacy of RED PILLS, persuaded me to take them during the period of one year. Today, thanks to the good results obtained from their regular use, I am feeling much stronger and have more ambition to attend to my daily duties. We always have a few boxes of RED PILLS on hand at my home, and I am only too happy to say that in my opinion RED PILLS are an excellent tonic for weak and suffering young girls.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Below is what the press agents of the different theatres say of the current attractions and of others to come:

OPERA HOUSE

Snappy comedy, handled with the proverbial "pop" is always good entertainment. That's what is in store for the patrons of the Opera House who are scheduled to witness one of the remaining performances of the week of Fred Jackson's great three-part play, "The Naughtiest Wife," which is being so cleverly given by the Lowell Players. Nothing quite as good in its line, has been produced on the local stock stage in seasons, and capacity audiences at all performances testify to its qualifications and merit as a play. You will giggle, chuckle and laugh yourself through three interesting, amusing acts of byplay and story. Miss Marguerite Fields acts the part of the little young wife in a most entertaining manner, and Mr. Moore, the leading man, treats the role of the husband in his usual mastery way. The others, including Miss Helen Freeburn and William Melville, are most enjoyable. Don't miss it. Next week, Kate Douglas Wiggin's big success, "Mother Carey's Chickens."

THE STRAND

The fact that hundreds were turned away at all performances yesterday at The Strand, testifies very forcibly the fact that E. W. Griffith's super-production, "Broken Blossoms," is every bit as good as advertised. Those who were fortunate enough to gain entrance to pronounce it the most unusual and the same time the most gripping photoplay ever seen on a local screen.

consecutive years, and in six years her total milk-producing career—156,776 pounds of milk, so rich that it made 6,141.36 pounds of butter at goodness knows how much a pound.

Why shouldn't the world's finest cow be whined and dined in style?

The Sun Francisco Ad Club answered that question by having Tilly Alcantara—this planet's leading beauty, chief prize of the house of Holstein—as special

A professor of agriculture sang Tilly's praises in a speech telling how she had produced 23,425.3 pounds of milk in one year, over 120,000 pounds in four

STATE AND CITY PROBLEMS WEIGHED

Problems which confront state and city governments of the present day were outlined rather informally at the Centralville M. E. church last night by Senator Arthur W. Colburn and Mayor Perry D. Thompson.

The meeting was under the auspices of the men's organization of the church and was held in the auditorium. A. L. Hiler, president of the club, presided and first introduced Senator Colburn.

The legislator talked on Massachusetts issues—the recent report of the commission to investigate the street railway situation, the question of higher wages for school teachers, preparation for the centenary celebration, the high cost of living, appropriation for the state guard and many others.

He made an earnest plea for improved school conditions and read an anarchist literature as a sample of the dangerous brands being thrown upon the fire of socialism.

Mayor Thompson, with a speaking voice reduced to almost a whisper through laryngitis, spoke rather briefly and from no announced text.

He named three things, in the order of their importance in his estimation, which can and will save the country from destruction. The first was religion and by that he said he meant Christian religion in the broad sense. Laying his hand on the Bible beside him, he said that's the greatest agency in the world for the saving of mankind against Bolshevism. His second agency was education and the third organizations of people such as the brotherhood, fraternities and other bodies.

MITCHELL BOYS' SCHOOL

The Mitchell school football team will journey to Concord this afternoon to play the Middlesex school third team and a fast and exciting game is expected.

This evening at the Mitchell school Mr. Donald B. McMillan will lecture on "Four Years in the Frozen North." Mr. McMillan has many wonderful pictures of the Arctic regions, and a delightful evening is anticipated. Billerica friends of the school are invited.

Tomorrow, the Mitchell school junior football team will play the Mill Brook school juniors at Concord.

Nov. 21, Friday, the Mitchell school first team plays its annual game with Billerica high, at the Mitchell field.

A game is pending with the Mill Brook school first team to be played at Billerica Monday or Tuesday of next week. This game will close the football season which has been a very successful one for the Mitchell school.

It is estimated that France will have about two million tons of steel to export as a result of the increase in her metal resources by the mines of Alsace-Lorraine.

Capt. Chas. Koerpel

PUTS DOUGH IN DOUGHBOYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 19.—"Chow Charlie" Koerpel who now sports a captain's bars, has been catering to the American doughboy for a matter of 30 years. He "signed on" with the army as a brick private; but an early aptitude for preparing hominy pudding resulted in his transfer to the culinary department. Now he is dean of the master bakers of the army and travels from one army post to another, showing Uncle Sam's dough manipulators how to become expert "loafers." Captain Koerpel recently passed through San Francisco from Honolulu, en route to Washington, where he will submit formulas and recipes for a new and appetizing menu of provender for the army. "After all," he says, "dough is the greatest thing in the world!"

MASSACHUSETTS IN LEAD AS USUAL

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Massachusetts led all of the other New England states in the total sales of Thrift, War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates for the month of October, according to the latest reports received by Mrs. C. R. Burlingame, statistical director, savings division, First Federal reserve district. The Bay State also leads all of the other New England states in the sales of these government securities in the campaign to date.

The sales in Massachusetts for the month of October totalled $257,008.45. Approximately $2,537,630.33 worth of Thrift Stamps, War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates have been sold in the Bay State to date. Next to Massachusetts in the total sales of these securities for the month of October is Rhode Island with a total sales of $152,556.06. Connecticut, however, is second to Massachusetts in the total sales of these securities in the campaign to date.

RECONSTRUCTION WORK

Members of International Trade Commission at Boston for Conference

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Members of the International Trade Commission were greeted on their arrival here today by representative New England manufacturers, financiers and exporters. The commission, composed of industrial leaders in Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy and accompanied by agents of the department of commerce, officials of the United States chamber of commerce and commercial attaches of several countries opened a two days series of conferences here with a view to securing co-operation in solving reconstruction problems in Europe.

MEMORIAL MONUMENT IN PAWTUCKETVILLE

Over $1000 has been secured for the erection of the memorial monument in Pawtucketville in honor of the young men and women from that district who stood behind Uncle Sam during the war, according to reports made at an enthusiastic and well attended meeting of Pawtucketville residents in the Pawtucketville Congregational church last evening.

Plans for the welcome home celebration which will be held December 3 are also fast rounding into shape, and it was announced that two prominent Boston speakers will make addresses at the banquet in high school hall which will be a feature of Pawtucketville's tribute to her boys who fought and won.

A children's entertainment will be held Saturday afternoon in the Pawtucket school hall to raise further funds for the memorial monument. An elaborate program has been prepared and a large attendance is expected. The program will commence at 2 o'clock.

C. F. Cronin, chairman of the committee in charge of the coming celebration, requests that all men and women from the district who were in the service send their names and addresses to Rev. Mr. Lyon, secretary, in order that each may receive an invitation to the banquet.

The next meeting of the committee in charge of the welcome home and memorial fund will be held Monday evening in the Pawtucket church. Final arrangements for the celebration will be completed at this meeting, it was said.

In connection with the memorial fund E. Axon, chairman of the entertainment committee announced that the committee would stage a concert at the Pawtucket church on the evening of December 10.

Miss Wholey, chairman of the dance committee, reported that plans had been completed for a dance to be held at the Pawtucket boathouse December 5.

Do You Know

That the famous La Touraine Coffee has a running mate—La Touraine Tea?

Do you know that La Touraine Tea can be bought with the same certainty that you are going to have as fine a cup of tea as you now have of coffee—when you ask your grocer for La Touraine?

La Touraine Tea

The Perfect

Coffee and Tea—Tea and Coffee—both La Touraine. That is the formula for the perfect cup of refreshment—the tonic that starts the day right—or around four o'clock cheers you, and perhaps a friend or two.

La Touraine Tea is choice Tea. Whether your taste be Orange Pekoe, Formosa, Oolong, English Breakfast or Japan, you will find it perfection. Rich, with body to it and that blossomy fragrance which every lover of a perfect cup of tea knows so well.

When you order La Touraine Coffee ask your grocer to include La Touraine Tea. Then, "what to drink" is a settled question in your home.

HALIFAX GIVES FAREWELL DINNER TO AMERICAN CONSUL GENERAL

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 19.—Citizens of Halifax last night gave a farewell dinner to E. E. Young, American consul general, who has been stationed here for the last six years. Lieut. Gov. Grant and many of the city's leading residents attended. Mr. Young will leave shortly for Odessa, Russia, to take up his new consular duties there.

TREAT IN STORE FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Lowell music lovers are to have a rare treat on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week when the Mountain Ash Welsh Male Concert choir will sing at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Men of the Round Table. It was decided to run the concert two evenings owing to the international reputation of this famous choir, thereby giving all a chance to hear these men.

There is a sufficient number of music loving people in Lowell who will be interested in music delightfully and attractively presented by a high class and expensive attractive. The Mountain Ash Male Chorus is just such a company, presenting a program which pleases the most fastidious. The artists, of this wonderful choir, under the direction of Mr. Glyndwr Richards, are educators in that their concerts uplift, and cultivate a taste for better things.

We read from the press of other cities where they have been singing lately "Nothing quite so good as this choir," Washington, D. C., Herald: "Their work is a revelation in the art of singing," New York Herald: "Faultlessly trained as individuals, collectively, nothing short of marvelous," Syracuse Standard.

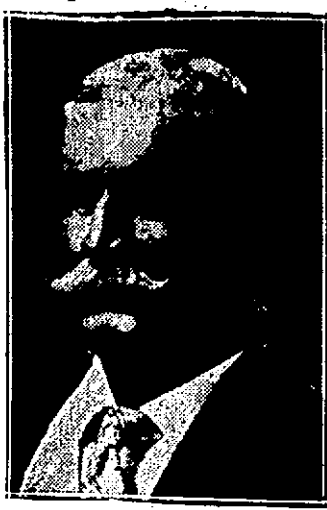

These concerts will undoubtedly be among the best given in our city this season.

on the stump and kept the voters supplied with campaign material. Mayor Thompson, certain of the nomination confined his efforts to frequent appeals in the press.

When seen this morning, former Mayor O'Donnell's comment on the result was: "It's the younger man's day." Mayor Thompson's big strength was in the republican wards, while Mr. Gilbride's chief strength came from the so-called democratic wards, although his vote was evenly distributed throughout the city. It is expected that the contest for election will be one of the most interesting in the city's history.

Three weeks intervene between now and election day.

Mr. Salmon's big vote may be directly traced to widespread popularity and a judiciously conducted campaign. It was his introductory effort in politics and rarely has a novice made such a distinct impression. Although he made no effort to exploit the fact, few people forgot his work as an overseas secretary for the Knights of Columbus in the world war and the hold on the local public which he gained at that time was evidently a thing of more than ephemeral quality.

Mr. Donnelly, always a powerful vote getter, was expected to be among the leaders. Mr. Brown, another contender whom students of local political affairs rarely omit from serious consideration, showed that his strength and hold on the public are still active. Mr. Morse lost strength because of his action in laying off men in the water department, despite his statement that such procedure was absolutely essential to the maintenance of the department. Mr. Cosgrove has long been a figure to be seriously considered in any fight he enters and his big vote caused little surprise.

The school committee fight which introduced 12 contestants was almost any man's victory until the polls closed. Mr. Delaney, the high man, was included in most slates because of his wide acquaintance and ability to bring his candidacy before the people. James B. Markham is a young lawyer. Dr. James H. Rooney, a well known dentist and James E. Lyle, a prominent jeweler. Their walks of life have brought them in contact with many people and their campaigns were all waged actively.

A Large Vote

Yesterday's ideal weather was a big factor in bringing out an exceptionally heavy vote. The total number of ballots cast in the mayoralty campaign, from which may be deducted the total male vote at the polls, was 13,491 out of a male registration of 17,696. The female registration was 6350 and a fair proportion of this number voted.

The registration for both men and women totaled 23,956, the largest for any city primaries in the city's history and the vote itself will be recorded well up among the highest in the city's annals.

If the same vote is cast for mayor at the city election or a slightly higher vote, the winning man must secure approximately 6800 votes in order to win.

One of the features of the returns was the complete absence of blanks in the majority vote in Precinct 1 of Ward 4. Rarely is a zero chalked up in the blank column.

The returns came in rapidly last evening. It was about 8 o'clock when Precinct 1 of Ward 1, the police station polling booth, sent in its figures. Thereafter, the results were forthcoming in a rapid stream until 10 o'clock when there was a slight let-up. At 11 o'clock final results were available. Precinct 2 of Ward 3 was the last to make returns.

In order to get the returns from a number of the outlying polling booths to city hall, the motorcycles used by the police department were employed and accelerated the work to a considerable extent.

One of the largest crowds ever present on a primaries or election night pressed its way into city hall last evening and the newspapersmen and official clerks had little room in which to work. But everything went off without a hitch.

Two Years Ago

In 1917 Mayor Thompson polled 2544 votes at the primaries in comparison with 4563 this year. Mr. Gilbride's 1917 vote was 2193 in comparison with 4072 this year. Mr. O'Donnell's 1917 strength was 2135 and this year 1015.

Of the three aldermanic candidates who also ran two years ago, Mr. Donnelly made a gain of more than 200 votes. He was given 3604 votes in 1917 and 3534 this year. Mr. Morse lost almost 900 votes this year in comparison with two years ago. In 1917 he received 4015 votes for the nomination and this year only 3145. Mr. Cosgrove received 2359 votes in 1917 and 3107 votes this year, a marked gain.

At the city election, Dec. 9, voters will elect one of the nominees for mayor, two for aldermen and two for school committee. Those that are elected will serve for two years unless there is a change in the form of charter in the meantime.

Little "d" Democrat, Prince Edward Albert, Heir to the British Throne, Received a Royal American Welcome

BY EVELYN DRUM-HUNT

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 19.—
Hail the fairy prince!
He's just under twenty-five;
He's a bachelor;
And he is all this:

His royal highness Prince Edward, Albert, Christian, George, Andrew, Patrick, David of Windsor, Prince of Wales, Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Warwick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles, Grand Steward of Scotland, a lieutenant of the royal navy, captain of the grenadier guards, honorary colonel in the Cheshires and during the war he was aide to Field Marshal French and a general staff officer with the British army in the field.

Why is the United States interested in the visit of this young man? Partly of course because of the position he holds as the eldest son of the ruler of one of the greatest nations of the earth, but surely also because of himself.

A Little "d" Democrat

For there is an air of romance about this young Lochinvar who has come out of the east—a picturesqueness that brings thoughts of fairy princes of childhood tales.

In the first place, Edward Albert, by all accounts, puts "on no airs" and that endears him at once to the American heart. He has proven himself a little "d" democrat. It is a foregone conclusion that he will receive a royal American welcome when he visits Washington.

He is a man's man and a woman's man. In Canada they've had a ripping time making a cowboy out of him, dressing him up as an Indian, getting him into the whirlpool of stock exchange, dancing him, telling him, golfing him, sending him out into the deep woods to hunt big game—and he has come up smiling.

And Prince Charming

Here then, is the reason we're for him and for his visit in our land—because he has shown himself a "good scout," debonair, good humored, boyish in his enjoyment. "Romp," not "pomp" is his word.

Perhaps, too, the prince will find a Cinderella somewhere before he returns to England.

And the old law says he may marry the girl of his heart, regardless of her social status or nationality—whether she wears silks and satins or just sells them.

The king and queen of England can petition parliament to make any marriage the prince might desire royal.

Wherefore, here's a prince charming, tall slim, blonde, handsome, heir to the throne of a great kingdom, a lover of life—and open to engagements.

Of course all the world is interested. The first British heir apparent to bear the title of the Prince of Wales was the son of Edward I, who acquired it in 1301. He, Edward II, was born in Wales at Carnarvon, in 1284, after his father had invaded that country. To appease the conquered, Edward I gave his heir the title of Prince of Wales.

Negotiations are now under way to purchase a Welsh residence for the present Prince of Wales, Cardiff Castle, owned by the Marquis of Bute, is under consideration.

Sir Harry Lauder

"HE'S A 'KNIGHT' T'NIGHT"

"Sir Harry," who recently came up from Australia to visit those communities in the United States which have not yet entertained him, says he will never return to England where memories of his only son, killed in the war, are too poignant for him.

A Very Rare Sweet

A Fine Spread for Bread, Cakes and Waffles

Nature gave us a "sweet taste" for a very good purpose. Sugar is necessary to the system. It has genuine food value.

Domino Golden Syrup is made from cane sweets—a pure, wholesome product. It differs from other syrups in that you never seem to get too much of it. Its delight grows on you.

Its flavor is as delicate as honey—its color as clear as amber, a rich, clear golden tint. You can eat it with zest—and you're amazed at its tempting goodness.

Domino Golden Syrup is a rare dainty. It spreads well—neither too thick nor too thin. Eat it every meal—you will never tire of it. A fine food for all the family.

You will find it at your grocer's—18 oz. and 25 oz. cans. Order Domino Golden Syrup—today! It is made by the American Sugar Refining Company, refiners of Domino Package Sugars—Granulated, Tablet, Powdered, Confectioners, Brown—Adv.

in his role of professional laugh-maker.

At the conclusion of his American tour Sir Harry will return to the Antipodes, he says, and take up his residence there.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT AT THE Y.W.C.A.

House residents at the Y.W.C.A. presented an entertainment program of merit last evening when the pageant, "America's Challenge," was followed by an "Oriental Pow-Wow," featuring bright-eyed maidens dressed in the garb of the far east and Japan. The pageant was directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Van Duersen, assisted by Miss Adelaide Noyes and Miss Ella L. Calderwood. Rooms on the third floor of the building were given over to the oriental atmosphere and booths, a tea room, fortune telling and an optician. Japanese curios and hangings were loaned by Miss Russell.

Among those taking part were: Amy French, Marion Sawyer, Mrs. Addie W. Livingston, Elsie P. Bradt, Doris Wilson, Dorothy Brissett, Rose Macauley, Edith Doole, Gladys Thurston, Bertha Marrow, Mabel Kenyon, Elsa Reslow, Ethel Fraser, Nelda Cross, Edna Laurin, Mildred Brodie, Mabel Reardon, Gladys Shaffer, Gladys Hamilton, Emily Pearson, Lillian Smith, Alberta McQueen, Esther Simpson and Miss Wilson.

Dolls are used in China to attract the people in an advertising campaign.

LOWELL GRANGE ENTERTAINS

The Lowell Grange entertained members and a generous representation of the public at large at a pop concert given in Highland hall last evening. The Lowell Girls' club orchestra gave a splendid program and readings by Mrs. Frank Morse and songs by Miss Geneva Hanson added to the pleasure of the occasion. The program was presented under the direction of the three past executives of the grange: Mrs. Margaret Sarre, Harry Sawyer and W. G. Bowen. A brief business meeting followed the entertainment.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Earsol (double strength), and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Adv.

FIFTH STREET CHURCH

Elmer B. Gordon of Philadelphia, manager of the National Retail Coal Merchants' Assn., was the principal speaker at a business meeting of the Fifth Street Baptist church last evening. Mr. Gordon's talk dealt mainly with the coal situation as it exists today, and his remarks proved both interesting and instructive.

Making a Purely vegetable Medicine

1875—1919

In 1875, Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., gathered and dried the roots and herbs which she used in the now famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, from the fields and forests,—then steeped them on her kitchen stove and filled a few bottles at a time, to alleviate the suffering of her women friends, neighbors and acquaintances, and the success of this medicine was unparalleled.

After 44 Years

These illustrations show the present method by which vast quantities of this well-known remedy are produced and from exactly the same kind of roots and herbs used by Mrs. Pinkham in the beginning.

First—The various herbs used are of the finest quality, and gathered at the time their medicinal strength is the highest.

Second—After the herbs are properly ground and mixed, the medicinal properties are extracted by soaking in large stone jars, covered.

Third—Then the extract is drained through percolators, acting somewhat like a coffee percolator.

Fourth—To insure a thoroughly pure medicine, it is carefully pasteurized by heat in special apparatus, and bottled hot.

Throughout the entire process, from the crude herb to the finished medicine in bottle, cleanliness and exactness are the watch-words.

The Reliability of Testimonials Guaranteed

The testimonials published by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company come to them unsolicited. Never knowingly have they published an untruthful letter, never is a letter published without the written consent of the writer. The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness. It is easy to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; and their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

State of Peace

(Special to The Sun)

WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov. 19.—The printed statement of Sir Andrew McPhail to the effect that one of the first steps taken under the League of Nations would be the acquisition by Canada of a big tract of land in northern Maine and add the same to Canadian possessions created considerable stir here, coming as it did at the moment the League of Nations debate is nearing the end. The plan as outlined by Sir Andrew would give Canada something like 2000 square miles of United States territory and change the existing boundary line between Maine and Canada so to throw 150 miles or more of Canadian owned railroads now running on American territory over into the possession of Canada. Sir Andrew claims this can be done under article 15, section 1 of the treaty, which reads: "The assembly may from time to time advise the reconsideration by members of the league of treaties which have become inapplicable and the consideration of international conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world." According to the prevailing sentiment of Maine there seems to be little doubt but what the peace of the world would be endangered if Great Britain or Canada tried to grab from Maine 2000 square miles or 5000 square miles of United States territory, including the potato crop of Arrowscook county. Moreover, the new boundary as proposed by Sir Andrew involves all New England by removing to Canada one of its big commercial interests. The proposed new boundary line was established a century and a half ago and would slice off a population of more than 100,000 people, much valuable timber land, water power and the enormous potato crop for which Maine is justly famous and which stands second in the potato crops of the entire United States. Sir Andrew claims this can be done on the ground that the land is an outpost which fell to the United States as the spoil of war a century and a half ago and which was further conceded to this country by treaty a century later. Sir Andrew admits it might be difficult to make such a move, but urges that it is not impossible and is eminently proper. At first the idea of such acquisition of United States territory under the league was scouted by the Maine congressional delegation, but after Senator Johnson of California had read into the records of the senate Sir Andrew's statement, they took the matter more seriously, and Senator Hale of Maine scurried round and introduced an amendment to the pending reservation covering such matters. The Hale amendment was adopted by an overwhelming vote and now the boundary line of Maine seems to be protected according to the terms of the league in the only form in which it can hope for ratification at the hands of the senate. Senator Fernald of Maine, who at first was inclined to regard the suggestion of Sir Andrew as a pipe-dream, hastened himself to see to it that no loophole was left whereby Maine's boundary could be disturbed, and reminded his questioners that in such a case, although neither the United States nor Great Britain could have a voice in the settlement, yet the dependencies of Great Britain would have a vote, while the United States would have no representation whatsoever. Mr. Fernald added, except the reservation adopted by the foreign relations committee had been adopted he "wouldn't undertake to say what might have happened" if the matter came before the league for decision.

The scenes at the capital during the last hours of the treaty debate are unequaled. Crowded galleries now observe the no-applause rule for they have no desire to be thrust into outer darkness through excess of zeal in showing their approval of the Lodge reservations as they pass, one by one, in double quick time. Every day the vice president gives warning of the fate that will befall the luckless onlooker if he, or she, as much as smile audibly. At the first suppressed titter over some amusing incident a smashing rap of the gavel and a sharp word of admonition from the presiding officer follows. Guards rush to the front of each gallery and with stern but whispered warning stand alert to remove any offender, no matter how high his or her official station.

Two Cabinet Vacancies

The resignation of Carter Glass as secretary of the treasury to accept the appointment of senator from Virginia in place of the late Senator Martin, leaves two vacancies in the cabinet. We now have no secretary of the treasury or secretary of commerce, although the most vital of reconstruction measures are connected with those departments. With President Wilson too ill to attend to routine administration work, and with the cabinet lacking two important members, officials of secondary rank are doing admirable work to bridge over the gap and no ill effects are felt.

It is understood that the chief reason both branches of congress are being held in session is to safeguard the possible need of action on a resolution declaring the war with Germany at an end. If the treaty and league fail of ratification or are not acted on by the president, as has been intimated, would be the case if the document is sent to him in the only form in which it can hope for ratification at the hands of the senate. It is understood that in such an event congress will adopt a resolution declaring a state of war no longer exists, and which would need to be passed jointly by senate and house. What the action of the president would be under those circumstances is entirely a matter of conjecture and one man's guess is as good as another's.

FOREST FIRE PATROLS ON THE WING

At the conclusion of the first season in which aviators have maintained an organized fire patrol United States forest service states that the record made by the airplane has proved beyond question its effectiveness as an aid in discovering and locating forest fires.

For three months uninterrupted service was maintained, and a total of 745 flights covering 22,605 miles were made. Many fires were discovered, located and reported in advance of the regular forest service detection organization.

Six patrol routes covering national forest areas of high value in California were followed, and twice each day six Curtiss airplanes covered the better part of 5,000,000 acres of rough, mountainous, heavily timbered country. The average non-stop run was 150 miles; the average round trip 320 miles.

Beginning Sept. 1, eight airplanes covered twice each day more than 16,000,000 acres of national forest. Eight additional airplanes were used on alternate days to allow for necessary repairs and relief of pilots.

Sixteen pilots and 22 mechanics were assigned to the work. In the discovery of fires the air patrol showed itself 55 per cent. efficient and it is declared that it can be made practically 100 per cent. efficient, either by providing for a longer period in the air or possibly by making the time of flight correspond more closely to the hours of the day when the largest percentage of fires start.

Experience shows that while the effective "discovery radius" varies with atmospheric conditions and the height of the observer, an observer at an altitude of 5000 feet can detect a fire at least 30 miles distant.

BELGRADE SHELL-TORN AND DESOLATE

BELGRADE, Serbia (By the Associated Press).—Belgrade remains today as the Germans and Austrians left it—shell-shattered, bomb-torn and desolate. Owing to lack of materials, money and labor, no steps have yet been taken by the authorities to restore the scores of residences, public buildings and other property that fell under the enemy bombardment. Nothing has been done to repair even the royal palace, which, windowless, scarred and neglected, looks like a great empty barracks.

The Serbian capital has a gloomy, depressing air about it, and this atmosphere is shared to some extent by the people, who sit at home with somber faces. Belgrade amuses itself. There are few restaurants, theatres, cinemas, or places of diversion or entertainment in Belgrade. At night the city has all the stillness and repose of a tomb. It may be, quite naturally, that the country is still mourning its losses, for it has been continuously at war for seven years.

The retail stores display only scanty stocks. Some of them are closed entirely. Cheap articles of jewelry and trinkets and their way from Austria and Germany, while perfumes, scented soaps and silk stockings come from Paris. Wearing apparel of all kinds is high in price. The Serbian franc has fallen to low purchasing value.

As in most war-affected countries, there is a tremendous amount of reconstruction work to be done in Serbia. Broken bridges, shattered railways, ruined factories and destroyed machinery will have to be replaced. Serbians say the material and, to some extent, the money and labor, will have to come from the outside, for Serbia, strained and straitened by seven years of war, is almost destitute of the means to accomplish this task herself. She is looking hopefully to the United States to help her in this direction. There is a constant plea for American engineers, businessmen and materials.

TIGERS WIN IN LAST MINUTES OF PLAY

With the score tied and less than 2 minutes to play, Fall River jammed through two goals in quick succession and defeated Lowell in a fast polo game at the Crescent Rink last night. The score was 4 to 2.

The teams entered the final period deadlocked and both outfits played strenuously to get the advantage. The goal tenders were subjected to a heavy bombardment, but they were in rare form and held off the attackers. The fans were getting set for overtime play, when George Hart hit one from an angle that went by Pence's pads, putting the visitors in front. There was just 1 minute and 55 seconds to go. Lowell fans called for a score, and while all hands played desperately to overcome the lead, Jean de la Roche put the "blink" on our chances by slamming another in. A few seconds later the big horn sounded and it was all over.

Lowell put up a great exhibition, considering its handicap in having McCormack, a Providence player, as a star. McCormack was a treat to look upon. He worked hard but he failed to fit in with the combination and consequently the other players were forced to shoulder the burden. He did some remarkable work and several times brought the fans to their feet by his brilliant dashes down the floor and quick and accurate goalkeeping.

Fall River defense men, Griffith, too, worked strenuously on both defense and offense and his team work with Harkins and Hart doing the shooting. Lowell tied the count in the second, with McCormack and Harkins the men behind the drives. The final round was a hummer with the winner in doubt until in the final two minutes of play when Fall River came through with a brace that spelled victory. The score: LOWELL FALL RIVER

POLO NOTES

A fine game. Jean has his "Tigers" travelling at a speedy clip.

Harkins' work last night was about as classy as one would care to see. Several times he crossed up the big fellow and forced through much to the delight of the fans.

Lowell needs Davies or some other experienced first rush.

There was a big attendance of the ladies at last night's game. "Bob" Hart, formerly of Lowell, who is now leading the league in goal-getting, will come here Friday night with the New Bedford team. The game with Lowell at the Crescent Rink. With "Bob" will be the ever popular Barney Doherty, Paul Gardner, Mossie Conley, and either Kehoe or Mulligan.

ALL STAR SHOW HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

An All-Star show with three ten-round bouts and one six round event, will be staged at the Crescent rink tomorrow night.

"Pekin Kid" Herman, regarded as one of the leading bantamweights in the west, will meet Tony Vatin, the Brighton "Ironman," in one of the ten-round numbers. Herman has been training at Martin Flaherty's gymnasium for over a week and is said to be in great condition. He came east with the promise of several good matches, and already has issued a challenge to meet Jimmy Wilde, the English champion, now in this country. Vatin is well and favorably known here as a satisfactory performer. Billy Duffy of Dverett, who won from Young Ketchell here a few weeks ago and Staver O'Brien, the southpaw from South Boston, will clash in another ten rounder. They are action boys who always fight hard all the way. Johnny Gray and Johnny Downs, two great rivals, who have performed in and around Boston many times, are scheduled to appear in the third ten-round event. They, too, are noted for their aggressiveness when within the roped arena. There will be a six-round preliminary.

Jim Owens dropped into The Sun office yesterday and announced that he would like to meet the winner of the Avila-Searney bout, scheduled to be put on here on Thanksgiving day. Jim says that he had little time to train for his last bout with Avila, which resulted in defeat, but has been training ever since and feels confident that he will reverse conditions in his next appearance here.

Friedman Beats McCoy
BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Abie Friedman of New York got the decision over Benny McCoy of Baltimore in 12 rounds at the Armory A.A. club last night. The bout was slow and listless.

The other 12-rounder was a hummer, however. Tommy Elms of Newark, N. J., and Charlie Bergen of New Haven battled to a draw in a dozen sensational fast rounds.

Al Nelson of Manchester, N. H., got the decision in 10 rounds over Joe Farren of East Boston in a rough, rugged fight. In the prelim, Phil Christie of the South End earned a decision in six rounds over Young Collins of the North End.

The Lowell Textile football team will terminate a very successful season, Friday, November 21, when it meets the South team representing Boston University.

The results of the games played by Textile up to date are as follows: Textile Opponents
6 Worcester Academy 7
12 Dean Academy 7
33 New Bedford Textile 0
2 New Hampshire State 12
13 Fitchburg Normal 6
23 Tufts 12-14
5 M.I.T. 14

Some idea of Textile's strength can be gained from the showing against New Hampshire state, a team so far undefeated this season.

Textile tackles a tartar in B. U., a team that was only barely beaten 10-7 by the fast Norwich University aggregation. This fact, however, only makes Textile more determined to win its big game.

It will be the last chance for Lowell football fans to see the Textile team in action and a large crowd is expected to attend Textile's first blue of defense will be chosen from the following men who have proven worthy of her confidence: Scott and Lemire—centre: A. Goose, Schwanz, Cochran, Cockcroft—guards: Stevens, Brown, Lombard, Miller, Goller, tackles: Capt. Precourt, Soulet, Berry, J. Goosey, Perlmutter—ends: Goldman, Marble, Schneider, quarterback: Lombard, Macher, fullback: Wentworth, Prince, Mott, Pott, Walker—half backs: This is the first year that Textile has really taken on teams of her class and she has demonstrated that she can rightfully hold her own with any small college in the east.

A good share of the credit for this season's showing is due Coach Hudson, who has been untiring in his efforts to turn out a winning combination. He has been handicapped due to the lack of time for practice and also to the fact that the team got a late start. However, this is only the beginning of a bright future for the team, as it loses only two men through graduation.

N. Y. GIVES PRINCE FINDS CAPE COD CANAL WORTH $16,801,201

ROYAL WELCOME

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The Prince of Wales received about everything New York had to offer from a royal welcome from some hundreds of thousands of citizens and the official freedom of the city to a book containing newspaper clippings recording his journeyings in Canada and the United States.

Other gifts presented to him included a silver star and stripes; a Bible given by the New York Bible society; a replica of the one presented to his grandfather, Edward VII, when he visited this country 60 years ago, and a gold medal donated by the representatives of 30 races who have contributed to the building up of America.

From the moment when the prince's special train arrived in Jersey City until midnight, when the royal guest retired to his quarters on the British battle cruiser Hibernia after a gala performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, the young British heir had scarcely a moment to call his own. In warmth and enthusiasm his reception rivaled that given by New York to his famous, royal cousin, Albert, king of the Belgians, and again, and again throughout the day the prince expressed his keen pleasure at his welcome.

After his official reception at the city hall, and visits to Grant's Tomb and the statue of Joan of Arc, at the foot of both of which he laid wreaths, the prince was taken to the Hibernia where the afternoon was occupied in receiving various delegations. The prince had planned a visit to Fifth ave., but his visitors were too numerous and he was unable to leave the cruiser until it was time to go to the Waldorf hotel, where he was the guest at dinner of Henry P. Davison, representing the former war council and the American Red Cross.

The prince praised the relief work of the seven American welfare organizations represented at the dinner, explaining that his "very moderate services as a junior officer in the great war" had enabled him to see "the noble service done in Belgium, France and Italy," the prince added.

"I am glad of this opportunity of meeting you and expressing my appreciation of your work. I understand that all the societies are engaged in permanent work and I know that much of it is being organized on international lines. I wish you all possible success in the efforts which you are making to relieve suffering and spread happiness in this and other lands."

Gen. Pershing recalled the visit of the prince to his headquarters overseas to review the American troops, "mingling with us in a truly democratic spirit that made us feel that he was really at heart an American."

In a statement last night "to the press" the prince declared that his reception in New York was so much warmer than expected that he was taken aback and could not express his feelings adequately in his short address at the city hall.

"Now that I am a New Yorker in my own right," he added, "I can tell you exactly what I think about New York."

Two things that impressed him most, he continued, were "the beauty and dignity of the towering skyline of the city," and the friendly welcome which "intensified the hope that this, my first visit to New York, may be by no means the last."

NATIONAL GRANGE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 19.—Reports of special committees of the National Grange occupied all of today's sessions of the annual convention. All of the meetings were sessions.

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—The jury in the Cape Cod canal case, which has been before Judge Morton in the United States district court for the past month, returned a verdict at 9 o'clock last night, after seven hours' deliberation, in which it valued the canal at $16,801,201.11.

The price offered the canal company by the government was $8,250,000. Evidence presented in the trial showed the canal cost $14,000,000 approximately.

A special issue was involved in the verdict relative to dredging the other work, such as rig-rapping the sides of the canal and the replacing of dolphins.

This was performed by the railroad administration, which has been operating the canal since July 25, 1918, as a war measure. Of this work, which the government claims cost $360,000, the jury finds $150,000 not chargeable to current maintenance, and this latter sum is, by agreement, to be deducted from the total valuation.

Among others who testified at the trial was Sec. of War Baker, Ex-Mayor Nathan Matthews, assisted by Frank Goodale, ex-assistant United States district attorney, represented the government, while Sherman L. Whipple was counsel for the company.

AGAIN DISCUSS AWARD OF THIRD PLACE MONEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Failure of the national baseball commission to award third place money in the last world series to the New York Americans was the subject of discussion at a special meeting of the directors of the American league here today. The meeting was called by the majority directors, Jacob Ruppert of New York, Harry Frazar of Boston, and Charles Comiskey of Chicago.

The New York club was officially awarded third place at a recent special meeting of the directors and a resolution was adopted authorizing the national commission to pay the Yankees their share of the series proceeds. Detroit, however, protested against the award, claiming that the games in which Carl Mays pitched should not be counted in New York's standing in the final standing.

POPE URGES AID FOR DESTITUTE CHILDREN

ROME, Tuesday, Nov. 18.—A document is about to be issued by the pope calling the attention of the world to the necessity for aiding destitute children of all the nations recently engaged in the war. It is expected the pope will contribute a considerable sum of money for starting the work. The pope has already organized at Mount Mario, near Rome, a home for tubercular children.

FORM FINANCIAL CORPORATION OF ARGENTINA AND THE UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Dr. Romulo Naon, former Argentine ambassador to the United States, heads a financial syndicate recently formed for the purpose of developing financial and economic relations between Argentina and the United States, according to advices from Buenos Aires. The company is known as "the financial corporation of Argentina and the United States."

ADVOCATES ABOLITION OF THE JITNEYS
(Special to The Sun.)

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Nov. 19.—That the report of the special street railway commission was apparently "doctored" after it had been passed upon by the members of the commission was discovered yesterday when printed copies of the report became available for public distribution.

The changes made in the report appear in the bill intended to curb jitney competition with street railways, and in place of the commission's recommendation that none be permitted to operate unless the public service commission shall issue a certificate of convenience and necessity, there is a bill placing the whole question in the hands of local authorities, with an appeal to the public service commission. The system recommended is very much the same as at present, except that the public service commission is given final authority, on appeal, to prescribe such rules and regulations as it shall see fit.

Originally, the report declared that "street railways are regulated by the public service commission. Jitneys should be similarly regulated by the same commission. In the printed copies, however, the last sentence is changed to read—"Jitneys should be regulated by public authorities."

Roland W. Boyden, one of the members of the commission, has submitted a supplementary report going even further than the original report in advocating abolition of the jitneys. "The competitive jitney," he says, "has no justification for existence. It reduces the efficiency and increases the cost of street railway service. It should be prohibited, not regulated. Jitneys are, nevertheless, needed in many localities. But where a street railway exists, jitneys, needed should be supplied by the railway, under compulsion if compulsion is necessary."

TRAINING OF SCIENTIFIC MOTHERHOOD AND ENFORCEMENT OF DRY LAW URGED

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 19.—Training for scientific motherhood and enforcement of the dry law as means of child conservation, were urged today at the convention of the National Women's Christian Temperance union. It was suggested that prohibition would be enforced rigidly if the people "watch the officials charged with its enforcement."

Mrs. Ira Couch Wood of Chicago, member of the federal child welfare committee asserted enforcement of prohibition would assist child welfare materially, in that "money formerly spent for liquor will now be spent for food and clothing for the children."

ELYRIA, Ohio, Nov. 19.—A bandit early this morning entered the dining room of the Hotel Tophy, ordered and disposed of a breakfast, backed the waiters, and guests into a corner at the point of a revolver, and held them there while he rifled the cash register of $50. He escaped in an automobile.

EGYPTIAN MINISTRY RESIGNS

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Egyptian ministry has resigned, because of dissatisfaction with the mission appointed by Lord Milner, secretary for the colonies, for the investigation of the unrest in Egypt, according to official dispatches from Cairo today.

Rioting occurred yesterday in Alexandria, the trouble lasting throughout the day, until the military restored order.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN AMAZON VALLEY

PARA, MOUTH OF AMAZON RIVER, Oct. 20.—(By the Associated Press).—Business conditions in the Amazon valley are beginning to recover from the disturbance of commerce caused by the war. Rubber estate-owners and business men generally, realize that the competition of Oriental "plantation" rubber which has forced the market price of that article down to about the actual cost of gathering "wild" Amazon rubber is really a blessing in disguise, since it is bringing about the development of the other natural resources left untouched so long as rubber monopolized all attention in the valley. Foodstuffs that used to be imported from abroad, or from other parts of Brazil, are now being raised locally.

A party headed by Henry S. Fleming, of New York, which has been investigating the commercial possibilities of the Amazon valley has returned to this city after a two month tour of the Amazon and some of its principal tributaries, nearly 8000 miles of rivers being covered in the course of the trip. Mr. Fleming is receiver of an American company with extensive logging, shipyard, and navigation property at Para.

The main river was ascended for over 2500 miles as far as Iquitos, Peru, and also the Javary, Purus, Negro, Xingu, Moju, Tocantins and other rivers for varying distances. A vast amount of valuable information and data has been gathered as a result, which is being placed free of charge at the disposal of American manufacturers, importers, exporters and others interested in the development of the Amazon valley. Many inquiries have recently been made by Americans seeking information regarding lands available for cattle raising, grain growing, and minerals, which indicates an awakening interest in the United States in regard to the Amazon country.

According to Mr. Fleming the most encouraging sign noted on the trip was the increase in the production of food-stuffs of all kinds. Mandioca corn, sugar-cane, rice, beans, bananas, melons and fruits of many species, and occasionally tobacco and cotton, have been planted in small patches along the river banks near the towns and settlements. Before the war practically all food-stuffs had to be imported as the wages paid rubber gatherers were so high as to make labor unavailable for agricultural work. Most of this planting is done on the low-lying banks of rivers, and at least two crops, of corn, beans, mandioca, etc. are gathered between floods.

One of the staple products most affected by the rubber boom was Cacao. When labor was attracted by the lure of high wages, most of the large Cacao plantations had to be abandoned; today they are being cleaned and replanted and new trees are being planted.

Local cotton men are optimistic as to the future of Amazon cotton, which is said to be of excellent quality and long staple. There are large, immense areas of the Amazon valley suitable for cotton growing, and in many places, notably Iquitos, (Peru), Santarem, Monte Alegre, this is now being produced in increasing quantities. Last year was the first that any concerted effort was made to grow cotton, but the idea seems to have taken on with many land-owners.

The Amazon valley is said to be the greatest undeveloped region in the world today, on every side there are natural resources of immense value, with commercial possibilities, which are as yet untouched. The soil is said to be extraordinarily fertile. The forest offers woods in inexhaustible variety, many of them cabinet woods of rare value. Of vegetable oil nuts, a tenth part only is known to the outside world. Resins, gums, spices, medicinal plants, fibres abound, in infinite variety. Kapok grows along the banks of most of main rivers, but not a pound of it is exported to the United States, although America imported 7,000,000 pounds last year from far away Java. There are mineralized areas said to contain coal, iron, gold, silver and precious metals of many kinds. They have not yet been prospected.

Many merchants up river, with whom the Associated Press correspondent spoke, in Iquitos, Manaus, Fonte Boa, Itacoatiara, Obidos, Santarem and Monte Alegre look for close business relations with the United States. They point out that foreign financial and technical assistance and machinery are necessary to help develop the immense resources of the valley, and they believe they are more likely to receive help from the United States than from any other of the great powers. There is a strongly pro-American feeling in Brazil.

The principal stores in the towns of Obidos and Santarem, for instance, are displaying highly-colored posters depicting Uncle Sam arrayed in stars and stripes smoking a certain cigar of native manufacture, a contented smile on his genial face. In another store a shoe made in Brazil had the American flag as a trade mark. The use of our flag in such a manner would, of course, be officially frowned upon in the United States, but the use of it in a South American country may be regarded as a hopeful sign of the times, pregnant of good for the future commercial relations between our countries. It is eloquent of the absence of any anti-American feeling, such as once existed in many Latin-American countries, that manufacturers here should consider Uncle Sam "good advertising."

ARMY, navy and marines during the war, is being organized. The American Women's Legion is the name. Its nucleus is in Washington, D. C.

Similar beginnings have been made in California, Indiana, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Organizers came to Minneapolis to gain support and co-operation from the American Legion. By a resolution adopted at the convention of the former service men, the women won recognition and promise of aid.

Chiefess of the Women's Legion is Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe of Washington, wife of the commander of the capital city post of the American Legion.

Secretary of the executive committee is Mrs. Robert H. Dunlap, also of Washington.

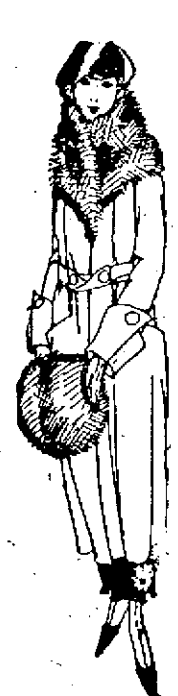

They hope to win over the larger organizations already in existence—the Service Star Legion, of which Mrs. Robert Carleton Morris of Toledo is president.

The Service Star Legion is well organized in several states, being a union of several different bodies, built around the original War Mothers of America.

"All these women's patriotic organizations can easily be combined into one strong and active group," says Mrs. Howe.

PRINCE OF WALES "SEES" THE SIGHTS" IN N. Y.

ALLIES TO MAKE PEACE TREATY OPERATIVE

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The Prince of Wales, new a New Yorker in his own right, was up early today to "see the sights." Pleased by the warmth of his welcome here yesterday, when he was made a freeman by Mayor Hylan, the youthful heir to the British throne displayed a boyish eagerness to become acquainted with the city.

His morning program included a trip to the top of the 51-story Woolworth building, an automobile ride through famous thoroughfares, visits to the stock exchange, the United States sub-treasury building, historic Trinity church and the chamber of commerce. The afternoon will be taken up with a visit to the annual horse show at Madison Square Garden. Tonight he will attend a dinner of New York societies and later will be the guest of honor at a ball in the home of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

By his democratic bearing, the prince has captured the heart of New York. He was greeted with unusual warmth everywhere he went. The crowds showing a democratic disregard for royal dignity saluted him with such remarks as "Hello, Prince!" and "He's a regular guy," and frequently called him "Eddie."

The prince is guarded by a swarm of 2500 police and federal secret service agents, but there has been little for them to do.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Great Britain and France are considering whether they are not compelled to proceed with the carrying out of the German peace treaty and the operation of the League of Nations independent of the United States, pending the decision of the American government on its course.

It is pointed out that matters are continually arising under the treaty which need immediate attention, such as the operation of the various plebiscite commissions, and it is considered that because of this fact it is no longer possible to delay making the pact operative.

The opinion prevails here that Great Britain will not accept any reservations made by the United States senate which would necessitate the negotiation of a new treaty, as the British government, it is declared, has every present intention of adhering to the decisions of the Paris conference.

The belief still exists here that the American government will ultimately take its place with the allies. Meanwhile, there appears to be a possibility that Great Britain and the other nations will proceed without the United States.

An electrical station with a 90-mile transmission to Melbourne is to be erected in the brown coal fields of Australia.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

ENFORCE PROHIBITION

Plans of Government to Build up Enforcement Machinery Under Way

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Plans of the government to build up its prohibition enforcement machinery are well under way. An announcement today by John P. Kramer, prohibition commissioner, said examinations for field revenue inspection service of the enforcement staff will be held soon. Appointments will be made through the civil service.

4TH DEGREE K. OF C. WILL INSTALL OFFICERS

One of the biggest meetings in the history of Bishop Delany, general assembly, fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, will be held tomorrow evening, when the formal installation of new officers will take place with brilliant ceremonies in K. of C. hall.

Hon. Lewis Watson of Boston, master of the fourth degree in Cabot province which embraces all New England, will come to Lowell with his suite to install the officers and in coming here he confers a distinct honor on the Knights as he is a very busy man. Mr. Watson is one of the prominent figures in K. of C. circles in this state, a man of splendid judgment and rare executive ability. His speeches throughout the district have breathed much of the spirit of the great organizational efforts to stamp out Bolshevism, and his speech in Lowell is expected to deal with this latest phase of the work taken up by the knights for which a special appropriation has been made.

Under the new faithful navigator, Andrew Molloy, Bishop Delany assembly gives abundant proof of being an active and interesting organization, its affairs in the past have shown a masterly touch and finish under such men as Dr. Thomas F. Carroll, Walter L. Hickey, Thomas F. O'Donnell and Thomas B. Delaney, all of whom served with genuine satisfaction. To Andrew Molloy, however, must be awarded the palm for arousing interest in anything and everything with which he has ever been connected in Lowell K. of C. circles.

PRIMARY IN LAWRENCE

Ex-Mayor White and City Treasurer Kelleher Nominated for Mayor

LAWRENCE, Nov. 19.—Polling more than all his opponents together, ex-Mayor William P. White won first place in the nomination for mayor at the city primaries yesterday. His name and that of City Treasurer William A. Kelleher will be on the ballot election day, Dec. 9. The defeated candidates were Frank L. Donovan, who served overseas as a major, and ex-Representative Michael A. Flanagan. Alderman Peter Carr and ex-Alderman James W. Cadogan were nominated for director of public safety, the present holder of the office leading by a good margin. Both John J. Finnegan, present holder of the office, and Patrick F. McNulty will fight it out at election day for director of engineering. There was no contest for the nomination. A woman was nominated for the school committee for the first time in the history of the city when Mrs. Anna M. Driscoll ran second to Luke J. Devaney, who seeks a re-election. Two will be elected. The vote was as follows:

FOR MAYOR

P. L. Donovan	1054

THANK YOU

Mayor Thompson Appreciative of Voters' Confidence

"I deeply appreciate the splendid support that was given me at the polls yesterday. It is indeed most gratifying to know that without an active campaign on my part, my administration was sufficiently satisfying to nearly 5000 people to merit such an endorsement. I can add only that I intend to wage a clean, vigorous campaign for re-election and hope to prove worthy of the compliment paid me yesterday."

EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

Owen E. Brennan and Victor F. Jewett, successful candidates for representative at the recent state election, have filed their expense accounts with City Clerk Flynn. Neither paid or promised anything, according to their accounts.

Results in Lynn

LYNN, Nov. 19.—Mayor Walter H. Creamer and Hon. Asa T. Newhall, who was mayor in 1889 and 1890, were yesterday nominated in the city primaries as the candidates for mayor, who will be voted for at the election Dec. 9. Of 3605 votes cast yesterday, Mayor Creamer polled 3819; Newhall, 2183; Henry L. Dunn, 1532; John E. Wilson, 1752; and Councilor Eugene W. Mitchell, 512.

Why So Many Prefer The Brunswick

THE Brunswick Method of Reproduction is the wonder of the phonographic art. And it wins acclaim from two principal ideas: The Utuna and The Brunswick Tone Amplifier.

The Utuna is an exclusive invention, an all-record player to be had only on The Brunswick. It plays all makes of records as they should be played—with the proper needle and the precise weight—and with the proper diaphragm.

The Brunswick Tone Amplifier is built entirely of wood, according to a new process. In this "throat" of the phonograph all metal is discarded. This brings purity and volume of tone. There is an absence of the usual metallic sounds. You've never heard any record at its best until it is played on The Brunswick.

A tone test at a Brunswick shop is conclusive evidence. Your ear is a quick judge.

Your admiration for this superior phonograph will compel you to award The Brunswick first place. Come in today. Your judgment is final.

The Brunswick requires no exclusive artists

N. Y. BROKER ARRESTED

Held in $500,000 Thefts—Charge Messengers Helped to Rob N. Y. Firms

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—David W. Sullivan, a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, was arrested yesterday on a charge of larceny.

The American Surety company, which has been working on the case with the district attorney's office, declared in a statement last night that it is believed the arrest will "reveal a number of messenger thefts among downtown brokerage offices totalling at least $500,000."

Sullivan, who is in partnership with Norman Bowles, under the brokerage name of Sullivan & Company, was arrested in his office at 10 Wall street, on orders of Alfred J. Talley, acting district attorney. The prisoner, according to the Surety company, was accused of acting in concert with Frank Parnell, a messenger, whose name is mentioned in the warrant for Sullivan's arrest and others not yet apprehended.

Jail Sentence

wife, Lillian P. Riley, should not be granted.

When questioned, Riley said that he was granted a decree in divorce proceedings brought on three counts, non-support, intoxication and cruel and abusive treatment, and at that time the court ordered the husband to pay $5 a week for the support of his two minor children, but he failed to comply with the order. Witness stated that her husband gave her $8 a week for some time and then dropped his payments to $5 a week and later to $4 and since August 29, 1919 he has not made one payment.

When questioned Riley stated that he was 20 weeks without work and now his weekly wage is but $17.69 and he has all he can do to look after himself. Questioned by the court, Riley stated he smokes cigars and goes to "dives" and dances occasionally.

"You find time and money to go to theatres and dances and to smoke cigars, while you also dress pretty well, but you cannot provide for your two children, and you are showing no disposition to comply with the order of the court," said the honor, when Riley stated he was willing to give $4 a week towards the support of his family. Riley said that amount was as much as he could afford to give. He was then turned over to a deputy sheriff and taken to the Cambridge jail.

Chases Chills

Imagine a light, soft, woolly, eiderdown blanket, 15 inches long and 12 inches wide, which maintains an even, soothing heat, and you have a good mental picture of this pad.

Electric Warming Pads are in use in hundreds of Lowell homes where the leaky, unreliable hot water bag was formerly tolerated.

Connects to any lamp socket. Is twice as large as the ordinary water bag or bottle and weighs only 1-3 as much.

THANKS

TO THE PEOPLE OF LOWELL:—

I wish to thank the people of Lowell for the wonderful expression of confidence given to me at the municipal primaries yesterday. I am deeply grateful and shall always try to prove worthy of such a tribute. My campaign against the present Mayor will be conducted along legitimate lines, by the discussion of issues which now confront us. Again thanking you, I remain, faithfully yours,

JOHN J. GILBRIDE,

W. E. GUYETTE—Auctioneer

Extraordinary Sale at Public Auction of Two Residential Properties at 1535-1553 Middlesex Street Respectively

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22d AT 3 P. M.

By order of the Costikyan Carpet Corporation of New York City, on the day and hour above stated will be offered at public auction these two attractive residential properties. They are located in a section of the city where it is practically impossible to obtain a home of any character at any price and in a section of the city that is experiencing a most rapid industrial development. Both parcels are within an easy distance of the new freight terminal of the Boston & Maine R. R. The title is guaranteed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, it being issued by the Land Court.

1st PARCEL—A full 2 1/2 story house situated at 1535 Middlesex street, directly at the head of Webber. The house is of the highest order of construction, of excellent modern design, and has eight beautiful rooms. It is equipped with bath, hot water, and set wash trays. The heating is by steam (Crawford Boiler). The general plan and arrangement is most attractive. The lot is large, approximating 7000 square feet and affording a splendid gardening opportunity if desired, the land being unusually rich and fertile.

2nd PARCEL—Immediately following the sale of the above described property will be offered the parcel at 1553 Middlesex street. This is one of the fine old residences of the city. It is of a genuine colonial type and has an extended street frontage in excess of 100 feet directly on Middlesex street. The house is utilized at the present time for three apartments; it is likewise adapted for use as a single residence or for two apartments. It has eleven rooms with a beautiful colonial hallway, open fires, and in many rooms colonial panelling. Heating is by steam with a modern Richmond Boiler. The house is also equipped with bath. The foundations and general construction of the property are equalled by few in the city. Land approximating quarter of an acre will be conveyed. For anyone desiring a house in this section of the Highlands, herein is presented a most exceptional opportunity as residential properties of this size and character are practically unobtainable.

TERMS—$400 to be deposited with or secured to the auctioneer as soon as either parcel is struck off. Other terms at sale.

Per order,
COSTIKYAN CARPET CORPORATION,
H. N. Elliott in charge.

OFFICE, ROOM 4, CENTRAL BLOCK, LOWELL, MASS.

On Saturday, November 22, at 3 p. m., on the premises will be sold at public auction the following described real estate located at No. 124 Appleton street, consisting of a 3-story brick block of 15 rooms. The house is heated by furnace, has bath, hot and cold water, open plumbing, set tubs. At present this is rented for $624 yearly, which is very low.

This is an exceptional opportunity to purchase a business and home property situated on one of the main streets within half a minute of the postoffice, and five minutes to Merrimack Square. (Property on this street is continually improving in value. You will make no mistake in attending this auction.)

Terms—$200 down. Make all inquiries of Simon B. Harris or Hyam Bros. Per order JOHN CHESLER.

Bitter Debate in Senate on Treaty

Lodge Declares Senators Will Not "Obey Orders" of Wilson to Defeat Resolution

President in Letter to Sen. Hitchcock Urges Defeat of Lodge Resolution of Ratification—Declares it Calls for Nullification of Treaty—Lines Sharply Drawn as Senate Opens Ratification Fight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Defeat of the Lodge resolution of ratification of the peace treaty was urged by President Wilson in a letter to Administration Leader Hitchcock, which was laid today before a conference of democratic senators.

The president said the resolution did not provide for ratification, "but rather for the nullification of the treaty."

Will Not "Obey the Order"

Immediately the president's letter became public, Republican Leader Lodge declared he did not believe the senate would "obey the orders" of the president, who undertakes to command the senate to ratify the treaty without the reservations, which Americanize it and make it safe for the United States.

Thus the lines were sharply drawn when the senate went into session at noon to consider final ratification and to possibly bring to an end today the long fight over treaty.

Lodge and Hays Confer

Just before the senate convened, while the democratic senators were meeting, Republican Leader Lodge held a conference with Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee.

The decision of democratic friends of the treaty to vote against a ratification resolution containing the Lodge reservations was affirmed at the conference of democrats. Senator Hitchcock said enough democrats to insure its defeat had agreed to vote against the Lodge resolution.

No Compromise Plan Drafted

No compromise plan was drafted by the democrats but it was suggested that after the prospective defeat of the Lodge resolution, a committee of democrats would be appointed to confer with the republicans to that end.

Immediately the senate met, Senator Lodge formally presented the resolution of ratification containing the 15 reservations adopted by a majority of the senate.

Debate Lodge Resolution

Although the democratic stand was declared in republican quarters to have diminished the chances of a compromise, it was learned that a proposal to modify the preamble reservation of the committee so that the reservations would not have to have affirmative acceptance by the other powers had been under serious consideration by the republican leaders.

It was understood that the republicans had manifested a willingness to insert a proviso by which the reservations could be accepted by the other powers by their merely "not objecting to" them.

At the outset, Senator Lodge asked unanimous consent for an immediate vote on unqualified ratification. Administration Leader Hitchcock said the democrats preferred to wait until the Lodge resolution had been voted on. Senator Lodge then withdrew his request and the debate on the Lodge resolution began.

President Wilson's Letter

The president's letter addressed to Senator Hitchcock and dated yesterday, follows:

"My Dear Senator: You were good enough to bring me word that the democratic senators supporting the treaty expected to hold a conference between the final votes on the Lodge resolution of ratification and that they would be glad to receive a word of counsel from me.

"I should hesitate to offer it in any detail, but I assume that the senators only desire my judgment upon the important question of the final vote on the resolution containing the many reservations of Senator Lodge. On that I cannot hesitate for in my opinion the

"PEOPLE MUST HAVE COAL"

Fuel Administrator Garfield Warns Coal Operators and Miners

"People of U. S. Need, Must Have, and Will Have Coal," He Declares

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Speaking with the authority of President Wilson's cabinet, Fuel Administrator Garfield told representatives of the bituminous coal operators and miners here today, that "the people of the United States need, must have, and will have coal," and as long as the government stands they will not be prevented from getting it by "anything the operators or miners may do."

Dr. Garfield explained that his purpose was to furnish the conference with the data which he would use in determining what wage advances, if any, agreed to by the operators and miners could be borne properly by the public.

"I represent the people of the United States in a different sense from the secretary of labor," Dr. Garfield said. "It is part of Mr. Wilson's function to effect conciliation. It is my sole function to exercise those powers conferred on the fuel administration; to see that an adequate supply of coal is furnished the people of the United States and to see that in times of stress such as we are still unhappily in the midst of, the prices asked and received for coal are not excessive."

"We all realize now that in the great coal industry the public is a partner. At one time the operators and mine workers, like farmers, considered themselves peculiarly independent. But the public has a paramount interest. The people of the United States will not consent to pay an excessive price for coal. We are all agreed to that, but the question now is 'What is an excessive price?' Nor will the public agree to go without this commodity."

"The people of the United States needs must have, and will have, coal, and they will not be prevented by anything the operators and miners may do unless the government is dissolved into a chaotic condition."

"The people of the United States are willing to pay sufficient to maintain American standards, but the question is what are American standards. The people want the operators to have a just return, but what is a just return?"

Dr. Garfield said he was not yet prepared to say what changes could reasonably be made in the price of coal as all the necessary data was not in hand. One of the items not yet determined, he said, was that of the federal income taxes for 1915, which the operators have claimed should be included in the cost of operation. The government has disputed this contention.

To Negotiate Wage Scale

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Scale committees of bituminous miners and operators met here today to negotiate a wage scale.

Thompson and Gilbride Win In the Mayoralty Contest At City Primaries

Salmon, Donnelly, Brown and Morse for Aldermen and Delaney, Markham, Lyle and Rooney for School Board—Thompson Leads Gilbride by 496 Votes—Cosgrove Gives Morse Close Chase for Fourth Place—Donovan Polls Good Vote for Mayor—Palmer Tops O'Donnell

John J. Gilbride and Mayor Perry D. Thompson will contest for the office of chief executive of this city at the municipal election to be held Tuesday, Dec. 9, as a result of yesterday's primaries when they were nominated by mon polled a vote that was one of the amazing features of the results. No less than 6559 voters registered their approval of his candidacy. Commissioner Donnelly polled 3334 votes, Mr. Brown 3448 and Commissioner Morse 3148.

For school committee the four nominees were Thomas B. Delaney, James E. Markham, James H. Rooney and James E. Lyle. The vote was as follows: Delaney, 5235; Markham, 4185; Lyle, 3426; Rooney, 2827.

The closest fight of the primaries was between Commissioner Morse and Daniel Cosgrove for fourth place in the list of aldermanic nominees. Commissioner Morse led Mr. Cosgrove by only 39 votes. The early precincts placed Mr. Cosgrove in third place, surpassing at times the vote of Messrs. Donnelly and Brown. Commissioner Donnelly soon settled into second place and was not disturbed for the rest of the evening. Mr. Morse, Mr. Brown and Mr. Cosgrove put up a merry fight for third and fourth positions and gradually Mr. Brown secured a potent grasp on third place. This left Mr. Morse and Mr. Cosgrove to fight it out for the bottom position and the commissioner finally won out. But not until the final precinct was in could Mr. Morse be said to have won. Premature reports went the rounds that Mr. Cosgrove had been nominated but these proved untrue.

The mayoralty fight produced frequent surprises. Mayor Thompson's nomination was generally conceded and Mr. Gilbride's aggressive campaign attracted attention that found reflection at the polls.

Mr. O'Donnell, twice elected mayor of the city, polled only 1015 votes. John substantial leads in a field of five aspirants.

Mr. Gilbride's vote was 4072. Mayor Thompson polled 1565, a margin of 496.

The aldermanic nominees, from whom two will be elected were John F. Salmon, James E. Donnelly, George H. Brown and Charles J. Morse. Mr. Sal-

Attempt to Kill Admiral Kolchak

LONDON, Nov. 19.—An attempt to assassinate Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian government which up until recently maintained its capital at Omsk is reported in a wireless despatch received here from Moscow. Hand grenades were thrown at Kolchak, six soldiers being killed and 12 wounded. The capture of Kursk, south of Orel, is reported in the despatch, the Bolshevik troops entering the city on Tuesday. In the course of operations resulting in the capture of Tobolsk, Ishim, Zekalinsk, Petropavlovsk, Koltzhetoff, and Omsk, the despatch asserts the Bolshevik took 1000 officers and 27,000 men as prisoners.

DISCUSSING MOVIES

Manager Says Lowell Theatres Are Not Run as Sunday Schools

Declaring that the theatres of Lowell are not being run as Sunday schools and that local managers are powerless to improve the films shown here unless public opinion forces the producers themselves to change the nature of their output, Walter J. Nelson, president of the Lowell Theatrical Managers' association, whose membership includes every theatre manager in the city, has made an emphatic statement of the position of the men behind the local houses of entertainment in the discussion which has come up here during the past few weeks as the result of the appointment of a committee of the Lowell Federation of Churches to investigate the brand of movies being exhibited here.

"The entire question," Mr. Nelson says, "hinges on what is meant by the term 'clean' as applied to motion picture plays. You must remember that amusement is a Sunday school in our theatres. Objection has been made to certain bathing scenes which are shown in some of the comedies at the local theatres. Is there anything morally wrong in seeing a person attired in a bathing suit? If so, the Metropolitan park commission is lax in its duty for allowing people to patronize Revere beach, Nantasket beach and the various other summer watering resorts of this section. Hundreds of bathing suits are seen there daily in the summer.

"I am afraid that some of our critics are forgetting the fact that every picture that is sent out is reviewed by the national board of censorship, a body made up of intelligent and high-minded people. If we are going to be overwhelmingly Puritanical about this matter, why not close our art galleries? That would be the logical outcome of prohibiting theatres from showing films that are no worse than the paintings and statues shown in our museums and art galleries. Everything depends, you know, upon a person's own mental makeup. We can't be expected to cater precisely to the individual taste of every person who comes into our theatre. If we did, we should be running several thousands performances a day instead of two or three."

In a recent interview, Rev. Earle T. Fayro, chairman of the committee appointed by the Lowell Federation of Churches to investigate the local films, was quoted as being authority for the statement that films which are censored in the state of Pennsylvania are sent to Massachusetts and allowed to be shown.

"This is absolutely impossible," Mr. Nelson declares, "When a picture is made a certain number of prints are sent to the central booking offices in each part of the country. These offices are known in the parlance of theatre men as 'exchanges.' There is an exchange for New England, one for the middle states, one for the south, etc. "When these prints are sent to a certain exchange they are confined to that section of the country. They are censored there, if there is a state censorship, and are distributed. At all times they are under the control of the exchange which knows every minute just where the various prints are. Hence, it is manifestly impossible that a picture which was sent to Pennsylvania, Ohio and neighboring states, could come to Massachusetts. That isn't the way the motion picture business is carried on."

"I wish some of the people who are finding fault with our movies here in Lowell would look back five years and ascertain the pictures that were being exhibited then. Those who have taken the pains to do so tell me that they are amazed at the difference. I ask them why there has come about such an improvement, and the only answer to that question is public opinion backed by public action."

"If further improvement is wanted, it's up to the public to go out and get it. The theatre manager can't force the producer to change his policy if he is alone in his fight. The producer merely smiles and says, if you don't like what we have, you know what you can do."

"But if the general public goes to the producer and tells him if he doesn't improve the quality of his pictures there will be trouble, the producer will step up and take notice because he will then be touched at a vital point—his pocketbook."

"I have been asked how the public is going to do this. Well, we have our local women's censorship committee here. There are similar committees in most cities and towns. And practically every state in the Union has a women's state committee. If these committees would get together, form a national body and get enough of the public behind them to give them weight, they could dictate the kind of pictures to be shown in every theatre in the country."

"You can't cure a stomach-ache by treating a person's head. You've got to get at the source of the trouble. If there is something wrong about the movies in Lowell, the trouble isn't in the manager's office, nor in Boston. It's in the plant where the pictures are made. And that's where the remedy must be applied. The theatre managers are willing to co-operate with the public in every way to bring about any improvement desired. But they are experienced enough in their profession to know how to go about the cure."

"I agree with the local school teachers that school children should be kept out of the theatres during school hours and the Lowell Theatrical Managers' association is doing everything it can, aided and abetted by the state laws, to keep the children away from the theatres during hours when schools are in session unless they are accompanied by their parents."

Mr. Nelson also dealt at length with the Sunday moving picture question, a subject that has been widely discussed and been given much thought both by the managers themselves and others in the movies.

"In the first place," he said, "Lowell is what theatre men call a rooming city. By that we mean that there are many men and women who work in the mills here and room out. I am sure that you will find many young men and women here who have no families and consequently are all the more eager for entertainment on Sundays. There is open to them the moving picture theatre. If that were closed the alternative would be questionable resorts. In a movie theatre they are able to 'kill' two or three hours on Sunday afternoon or Sunday evening in perfectly legitimate entertainment. If that entertainment were taken away, I shouldn't want to be responsible for what would happen."

"As for the character of the pictures being shown here Sunday, I need only show you the red tape we must go through in order to have any kind of a show on Sunday. First, we must buy blanks on which to make application to the city authorities and to the state authorities for permission to stay open. Remember, we pay for the application blanks ourselves. There are three sets in all and we must make two copies of each, one for the state and one for the city. We must tell the name of each picture we are to show, who made it, etc."

"Our application is then sent to the mayor's office, forwarded to the state police, approved, either in whole or in part, returned to the mayor and then we go to city hall to get it and pay our license fee to both the city and the state."

"When our application comes back we usually find that half of our Sunday entertainment has been eliminated by the state police because it contains scenes objectionable in their opinion for Sunday exhibition. No scenes of violence, shooting, robbery, dancing, etc., can be shown. Often the thread of a story is spoiled by the eliminations, but we have to live up to them."

"When you hear criticism of Sunday movies, please ask the critic if he realizes that the police department of the commonwealth of Massachusetts censors every foot of film we show on Sunday and was he to the manager who attempts to 'put anything over on the police.'"

"OH, HOW I HATE TO GET UP IN THE MORNING"

If John R. Power of 415 Merrimack St., Lowell, Mass., the well known loom fixer, did much singing, he would probably have specialized in that song, depicting the comforts of bed, for Mr. Power felt just that way for six months before trying GOLDINE. "I couldn't sleep well and when I did sleep, it didn't seem to do me any good. I could hardly get out of bed; I felt like lying there all the time. Also had rheumatism that made my legs and shoulders sore and cramped. At times I could hardly get out of my chair but since taking GOLDINE, that trouble is all gone. I sleep better and feel rested when I wake up. I eat good now and feel fine. I used to get home from work so tired I would go right to bed but now I go out to a show in the evening. GOLDINE is good medicine." Ask John Kelley what GOLDINE did for his kidney trouble. Remember GOLDINE is sold in Lowell by Carter & Sherburne, F. H. Butler & Co., W. P. Caisse, Jr., Fred Howard, Wm. H. Kiernan, Frank E. McNally, Wm. H. Noonan, R. F. Webster, Frye & Crawford Co. It is also sold by Roland G. Wright in Billerica, John S. Wentworth in Chelmsford, Conant & Co. in Wilmington, and dealers in Ayer, Westford, Dracut, Tewksbury and other towns. If your dealer does not carry GOLDINE in stock, have him secure it through the Lawrence Drug Co.—Ad.

CHARGED WITH ILLEGAL KEEPING OF LIQUOR

On a charge of unlawful keeping of liquor, Peter Andrews, a Lakeview, avenue storekeeper, pleaded not guilty in police court today and was granted a continuance until Nov. 26. The police allege that a quantity of whiskey was found at Andrews' store, which was raided Monday afternoon.

Charged With Larceny

Accused of stealing $40 from David Poirang, yesterday, and also assaulting him, James Brophy pleaded not guilty and was held in $500 for hearing Nov. 31.

Other Offenders

Found guilty of unlawfully carrying a revolver, George Stroboulakes was continued until Dec. 8 for sentence. Leo Parent, charged with endangering the lives and safety of the public in the operation of an automobile, pleaded not guilty and was held in $200 for hearing Nov. 26.

Another case of endangering the lives and safety of the public, in which Omer Blincault was given as defendant, was continued until Nov. 29.

TO ENFORCE THE "DRY" ACT

Circuit Court of Appeals
Issues Order Staying Execution of Injunction

Judge Brown Had Restrained
Federal Officials in R. I.
From Enforcing Act

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—The United States circuit court of appeals today issued an order staying execution of the preliminary injunction granted by Judge Arthur L. Brown, restraining federal officials in Rhode Island from enforcing the Volstead prohibition act.

The order of the court provides for a stay of enforcement until the supreme court gives a decision on a pending appeal from the federal court of the southern district of New York in a similar case, or until the circuit court of appeals takes further action.

The court, which was composed of Judges Bingham, Johnson and Anderson, in a statement issued with the order, said:

"On Nov. 13, the district of Rhode Island, in view of the probability that title one of the so-called Volstead act of Oct. 28, providing for the enforcement of war prohibition would ultimately be held unconstitutional and of irreparable damage that would thereby result to the appellants herein, issued a preliminary injunction forbidding enforcement of the act. The case comes before us on the petition of the appellants made under section 129 of the federal code, for the suspension of the injunction pending a determination of the appeal."

"Since this injunction was granted, cases raising the question of the constitutionality of this act have been assigned for hearing before the supreme court of the United States for Thursday, Nov. 20. We are of the opinion that the maintenance of the status quo pending final determination of this question requires us to stay the enforcement of the injunction during the pendency of the appeal or until otherwise ordered."

The injunction granted by Judge Brown of the Rhode Island federal court restrained the internal revenue collector of that district from enforcing the Volstead act. United States Attorney Harvey A. Baker of Rhode Island brought the matter before the circuit court of appeals on a motion for a

Members of St. Margaret's parish are looking forward to the seventh annual reunion to be held tomorrow evening in Associate hall. This year's affair will be unique in that it will take the form of a welcome home reception to the young men of the parish who saw service in the world war. A number of novel and interesting features have been arranged and competent committees under the general direction of Rev. Charles J. Galligan, pastor of St. Margaret's, have been hard at work for the past several months on plans to make tomorrow evening's affair a success.

Members of the Ladies Aid society of St. Patrick's church will hold a concert and junior party in Lincoln hall next Friday evening in aid of the society. The following program of entertainment will be carried out:

March. Markham's Orchestra
Soprano solo, "Captain Mac"
Miss Frances Tighe
Baritone solo, "Captain Mac"

Dance. "In Hells Marie"
Miss Annabelle Perry
Soprano solo, "Break of Day"

Miss Ellen Lynch
Baritone solo, "Sunshine of Your Smile"
Mr. Thomas Tolin

Final. Orchestra
John J. Kelly will be the accompanist of the evening and the entertainment will be followed by a grand march and general dancing.

CATCH THE WIDOW WITH THE GOLD

Today will be the last golden opportunity of catching the Widow by Proxy who has been successfully invading the larger stores of the city. Most of the advances have been made by members of the fair sex, due, no doubt, to the natural male tendency to always keep low when a widow sails their way.

The various prize-winners have streamed into The Sun office each day to receive their gold pieces. It isn't every widow these days who will reward the person recognizing her as such. But as has been said before, this one is unusually generous.

Miss Hazel Hoare of 451 Lawrence street was the lucky winner at the Bon Marche store yesterday. At the Boston Ladies' Outfitters, Mrs. F. J. Porteous of 63 Sixth street, managed to capture the widow.

Of special interest to the women is the fact that the hats worn by the widow were supplied by the Broadway Wholesale Millinery Co. on Merrimack street. She is wearing coats loaned to her by the J. L. Chaffoux Co.

NO CHANGE IN STRIKE SITUATION

There is no change in the strike situation at the Faco-Lovell shops, which went into effect yesterday forenoon and according to union leaders there is no indication at present for a settlement, for no steps have been taken so far for a conference between employees and employers.

It was stated at the plant this morning that about 1000 of the 2000 employees are at work, while union officials claim that the exact number of men and women on strike is 1950. The plant is being kept in operation with a reduced crew, while picketers from the union are constantly on the job at both gates of the shops. There are five picketers and a captain at each gate and they are kept on duty three hours after which they are replaced by others. So far everything is running smoothly and no case of disorder has been reported. The strikers will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at their hall.

COSGROVE'S FRIENDS ASK FOR RECOUNT

Friends of Daniel Cosgrove, who came within 39 votes of securing the nomination for alderman at yesterday's primaries, took out petitions for a recount at the office of City Clerk Stephen Flynn today.

The petitions must be signed by 10 voters from each ward and must be filed at the office of the city clerk not later than 5 p. m. next Friday.

AMBULANCE CASE

Charles Desky of North Chelmsford, employed at the Bagshaw company in Warren street, received injuries to his right foot while at his work shortly before noon today. The ambulance removed to him to St. John's hospital.

The gloves worn in Iceland are made without fingers, and in order that no time may be wasted in distinguishing between right and left each glove has two thumbs. The hand is thrust into the first glove taken up.

THE FARM LABOR QUESTION ACUTE

State Chamber of Commerce
Secretary Presages Reduced
Cultivation

Shorter Day Greatest Menace
to Future of New England
Agriculture

Lewis E. MacBrayne, secretary of the Massachusetts chamber of commerce, while addressing the Farmers' Institute in Chelmsford this forenoon, declared that the efforts of radicals to create a six or seven-hour working day, while the farmer even at present cannot compete with the eight-hour day, stands as the greatest menace to the future of New England agriculture. The labor question is acute, he said, and the tendency is toward reduced cultivation for next year because of the fear that farm-help will be just as scarce then as now.

The institute met at 10 o'clock at the Central Congregational church in Chelmsford Centre, with a fair sized gathering present when the morning session commenced. More came during the noon hour and the attendance at the afternoon meeting taxed the seating capacity of the meeting house.

Mr. MacBrayne, who has had wide experience in the supervision of war gardens through his agricultural connections for the state of New York during the war and who has made a thorough study of the economic side of farming, was introduced by E. P. Dickinson of Billerica, chairman of the institute committee.

The labor situation came first. In Mr. MacBrayne's talk and he freely admitted that it constituted a paramount issue in the consideration of profitable farming. He said that contrary to expectations, the boys who left the farms and towns to enter war service have not returned in full numbers, nor will they return and their places have not been filled. One-man farms are becoming more numerous and they retard agriculture and lessen interest and activity.

Poultry raising in New England is fast vanishing, said the speaker. Again he emphasized the lack of adequate help in this phase of farming and added that as the result of the decrease in poultry raising in this section of the country, we now depend largely upon the west and northern New York state for our supply.

"I have talked with a number of seed men during the past few weeks," said Mr. MacBrayne, "and to a man they say that there has been an alarming decrease in the number of calls and orders for vegetable seed for next year, but that grass seed orders have increased tremendously. This surely shows that the farmers of New England realize the precarious labor situation and are afraid that no improvement will be noted next summer. Therefore, they will greatly diminish their acres of cultivation and sow much of that land to grass.

"The farmer cannot compete with the city employer who operates the 8-hour day. Three dollar a day farm hands are the rule, but once a man drifts away from the country it is becoming harder and harder to get him back. In fact, he may be set down as lost to agriculture. If the farmer cannot compete with the eight-hour day, how can he hope to match the six and 7-hour day promulgated by radical labor men?

The question now comes, where will the farmer turn for help? The situation is a critical one. Junior clubs for canning and amateur farming some day hope to be able to send some of these boys and girls out to the farm, but it will be a slow process. It has been said that the so-called 'white collar' men, men who are in professions and offices, must come to the farmer with offers of help if agriculture is to continue. That is a broad statement and would not be successful unless it were brought about through energetic campaigning.

Franklin Lane, secretary of the interior, has said of New England that as yet our land has not been discovered as far as the economic value of the soil is concerned and that while the west and middle-west rise on an agricultural wave of prosperity, New England stagnates and shrinks because soil opportunities here have not been discovered."

The women of the Central church served dinner in the vestry at 1.30 o'clock and the afternoon session commenced at 2.30. The principal address was given by Rev. Harold Dale of Billerica, who spoke on "Home Reading." He illustrated his talk by reading from current magazines and books in an effort to show the proper and profitable way of spending leisure hours.

MADE HEN FRUIT PAY

Why "Pay George" for Eggs When You've a Back-yard?

BY E. AIRD FARMER
I was tired of "letting George" raise eggs for my table, while I worked at something that better fitted my talents.

Like thousands of other city and town dwellers, I had thoughtlessly accepted the proposition that some men were put here to clerk in stores or work in factories, while others were specially designed by Providence to raise chickens.

I had the notion that Mr. Professional Poultryman could raise eggs cheaper and better than I, or he would not be doing it. So I'd pay out my wages for his cheaply-raised eggs, and would profit on the deal as well as he. Then—eggs went up so high that I began to do some thinking.

Why "Pay George?"

I began to doubt whether the old "division of labor" was always profitable. Looking over my neighbors' backyards, I was struck with the fact that they, too, had abandoned the old-time backyard "egg factory," and were paying "George" to raise their eggs for them.

They—like myself—were slipping "George" 50 cents to $1 a dozen! And the eggs weren't any better than amateur eggs, as far as I could see. Hardly as fresh. "George" would slip a cold storage one in occasionally.

So I decided that, as far as I was concerned, the professional poultry-magistrate should be out of a job. I'd raise my own eggs and see if I couldn't beat that 50 cents or $1 a dozen.

Of course, I'd be "out" what little time it cost me. But I had a half-hour a day to give away, and I wouldn't have to pay any wages or profits to "George."

Figures Tell It

Here's what I can show today, after 10 months of egg raising:
Began with 11 hens and two roosters—for two pens with different breeds—the best stock I could buy of the State College of Agriculture.

This was my strategy—heavy Rhode Island Reds for winter laying, light Anconas for summer. They cost me $17.

I have spent for feed $52.50. Bought 25 baby chicks (five stock) for $6. Total outlay, $75.50.

For this outlay—and my labor—I have received:

Ninety-five dozen eggs, the best in the world. Figured at 60 cents a dozen, $57.

By the way, the market price during those 10 months was down to 50 cents for one month, then 60 for a month, then 65, then 75, then 85, and is now $1. So my figure of 60 cents is 'way too low.

I have had 95 dozen eggs in the last 10 months?

Then I have had 17 chicken dinners—nearly two a month—with chickens costing 45 cents a pound on the market. Figuring at $1.50 each, $25.50.

I sold 11 chickens for $23. Egg settings, $2. Total income, $105.50.

Total Profit, $71

Take away the $75.50 expended, that makes a net profit of $30.

Meanwhile, my "capital stock" has increased. I started with 11 hens and two roosters. Today I have 13 young pullets. Just beginning to lay, two roosters and 8 chicks, young stock—valued conservatively at $38, where I began with $17.

This brings up my total profit to $71—an average of $7 a month. And my "factory" is bigger and better than ever.

Now, this is nothing exceptional. I've had as "lough luck" as anybody. I am an amateur hen-man, not an expert. Two of my best laying hens died without giving any advance notice. Likewise 16 of my young chicks. I also had some poor hatches. Anybody can do just what I've done.

Meanwhile, when I read in the paper that "George" has boosted the price of eggs again, I grin. My two kids get eggs to eat just the same.

Why not try it yourself and let "George" go chase himself?

ON MISSION TOUR DOWN IN MAINE

The following relative to Rev. Louis Buchand, O.M.I., of this city, who is now on a mission tour in Maine, is from the Star Herald of Presque Isle, Me.:

A mission began in the Church of the Nativity, Sunday, Nov. 2, for the women of the parish only, and closed on the following Sunday. Each day during the women's mission there were masses at 6 and 7:30; in the evening at 7:30, there were the rosary, instructions, and the sermon on one of the important truths of the Catholic faith, closing with the benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament. After the O Salutaris, the large bell in the Nativity church tolled nine times for the Catholic women, if any, who failed to make the mission. The church during the women's mission was taxed to its capacity and Fr. Hayes was obliged to put in extra chairs to accommodate the large gathering. At the close of the women's mission Sunday afternoon "The Promulgation of the Law," that is, the 10 commandments of God and the six commandments of the church were given, while each woman held in her hand a blessed candle, which candles, afterwards were given to the shrine of the Mother of God, while the altar of the Blessed Sacrament was beautifully lighted with flowers. In the evening at 7:30 the men's retreat was opened and continues until next Sunday at 3 o'clock.

Since Fr. Hayes came to the parish there have been given three missions—the first in October, 1917, by the provincial of the Marist order, Very Rev. Fr. De LaChapelle, the second in 1918, by Fr. Dugal of the Redemptionist order, and the third, the retreat now going on.

Never in the history of the parish of the Nativity has there been such an outpouring of people, as are attending the retreat.

The father in charge of this retreat is the Rev. Fr. Buchand, O.M.I., one of the youngest of our priests and one of the most eloquent preachers ever heard here.

Over 1100 people so far have made the retreat.

Fr. Buchand will preach a special sermon on the Catholic church, at the high mass next Sunday, to which all are invited.

DANCING CONTEST HELD AT ASSOCIATE HALL

The first preliminary in the big dancing contest to determine the championship of the Merrimack valley for $200 in prizes was held in Associate hall last evening, with about 300 couples in attendance. The event proved a great success and all thoroughly enjoyed a remarkable exhibition of the terpsichorean art.

Seven couples competed and the task of selecting the winners proved a most difficult one. Finally, after a close and careful study of the many intricate evolutions and the artistic execution, four couples were eliminated and the three remaining couples held the attention of the judge and the crowd for some time. They gave a wonderful exhibition and to select the best couple was a task that only an expert could decide.

But Mr. Bernard Horan, who officiated as judge, showed excellent judgment in the opinion of the majority, and named James Jones and his partner, Miss Mae Nolan, for first place, George Wayne and Miss Rose Parker for second place and Joseph Mahoney and Miss Lowney for third. The decision brought vigorous applause. The winning couple was presented a ten dollar note.

The winning couple also will be eligible to compete in the grand final event for the big prizes on Tuesday evening, Dec. 9.

The couples finishing second and

Mental Work Needs a Stomach

Great Mistake to Imagine You Can Work Better and Faster on the Starvation Plan. Eat What You Like But Follow With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

Mental work uses up energy fast. And energy comes from food. To eat little or nothing in order to do more work is a fallacy that has created an army of dyspeptics. A better plan is to eat the regular portions of food such as make up the average meal and follow each meal with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

You will then get a double benefit—energy from food and sociability with meals, for as a rule, the light eater, or those who skip meals, get into a bad habit, a rut, of hermit-like isolation. Do not be afraid of gasiness, sour stomach, heartburn, heavy feeling or coated tongue after meals. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets arouse the stomach to secrete the juices necessary to relieve these troubles that so frequently distress the mental worker. They contain harmless ingredients which act with an alkaline effect, so you may eat the rich things of the banquet or the savory sausage for breakfast with almost freedom.

Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store, eat freely of what you like and you will do more and better work than on a skimpy diet. Try this plan.—Adv.

Bert Bland, Suspected Slayer of Lieut. Grimm at Centennial Arrested

CENTENNIAL, Washington, Nov. 19.—Bert Bland, notorious I.W.W. fugitive and suspected slayer of Lieut. Warren O. Grimm, one of the four American Legion paraders killed here Armistice day, was taken without a fight late yesterday by Sheriff John Berry and a company of deputies. Bland is in the county jail at Chehalis.

MILLIONS OF RATS KILLED IN ENGLAND

LIVERPOOL.—The first "rat week" has resulted in the destruction of millions of vermin. Ferrets, dogs, traps, poisons and gas have been used. Another "rat week" will be held in February and another in the spring. There is a measure before parliament to extend governmental support to the movement. Rats are estimated to cost England $200,000,000 annually.

Killed by Legioners

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 18.—Three hundred members of the American Legion, led by their officers, raided headquarters of the I.W.W. here last night. Hundreds of pounds of literature were thrown to the street where it was burned.

Our Profit from all Sources

The American Public does not believe all it reads. It insists on being shown.

When Swift & Company says its profits are only a fraction of a cent per pound, many believe we are not telling the whole story—that there are hidden profits.

Here Are The Facts:

Our net profit on our entire business for the year 1918 amounted to only 1.76 cents per dollar of sales, or less than one-half cent per pound, and

1. Included profits from hides and all other by-products.
2. Included profits from all sundry side-lines.
3. Included profits on all subsidiary corporations.
4. To sum up—it included the entire profit from every source of revenue in which Swift & Company has any interest. There are no other profits.

Furthermore our accounts have been checked and certified annually by leading public accounting firms.

Swift & Company is sincerely trying to get the facts before the public. If you have any questions regarding our business—write us—and we will do our best to answer them. In discussing the packing business be sure you have the facts and that you are not unintentionally spreading misinformation.

If you get the facts we have no doubt as to the verdict.

FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE

With winter at hand and strikes of various kinds in progress, here and elsewhere, what is the outlook for the average family? This is perhaps a question that comparatively few put to themselves, even though circumstances may call for unusual precautions.

We have been saved from a calamitous coal strike by prompt government interference; we have seen the steel strike carried on for weeks without any serious effect on local enterprises; but as to the final outcome of both these strikes, only those on the inside can foretell. Indeed it is probably true that the strikers themselves have but slight idea what may result if they persist in remaining out in opposition to the government appeal.

There are many other strikes in progress in various parts of the country and while none of them may assume very great proportions from a national standpoint, yet as a whole they help to curtail production on which the prosperity of this nation at present depends. But for as a city a comparatively small local strike will have a worse effect than a very great strike at a distance. What this city and this country need at the present time is industrial peace, an end of strikes and an increase of production that will pull down the high cost of living and promote prosperity.

Lowell has been comparatively free from ruinous labor strikes, and it is hoped that the mutual efforts of employer and employed will be exerted to prevent such conflicts in the future. We do not believe the radicals have control in local labor unions and that being the case, there is hope that good judgment will prevail and that on both sides there will be a readiness to compromise rather than hold out for the most favorable terms of settlement.

Just at present it is very hard for any man who has a family to support to go out on strike. Indeed it would be cruel to coerce any such man to go on strike if he has no means of support but his weekly earnings. The high price of food, of fuel and of clothing renders it very difficult for the family man to make both ends meet even when working steadily; but if idle, he must soon face starvation.

With industrial troubles, eliminated or settled by arbitration, Lowell would be fairly prosperous as things go at present, even during the coming winter. It is to be hoped, therefore, that all the parties concerned in such disputes will avoid strikes as far as possible, using peaceful means where practicable to secure the desired changes.

This nation is face to face with one of the greatest industrial and economic opportunities in its history if industrial peace can be maintained so as to allow increased production in raw material and in the varied lines of manufacture so greatly needed both at home and abroad.

It is only through industrial peace and increased production that we can establish profitable trade with foreign nations, now anxiously awaiting to get our products and unable to find what they want elsewhere. Anything that holds up production now will injure us not only at home but abroad and in the future as well as at present. It is imperative that we grasp the opportunity that is now knocking at our doors.

THE FATE OF THE TREATY

It appears that France is greatly alarmed at the prospect of the defeat of the treaty as a result of the extreme attitude of the republicans under the leadership of Senator Lodge. The chief objection is raised to the provision requiring the assent of three of the allied powers to the reservations adopted. It appears that if the republicans insist upon the preamble to the reservations the result may defeat the treaty.

The League to Enforce Peace of which former President Taft is president, has entered a strong protest against one of the reservations which would interfere with the policy of arbitration between the United States and different nations as provided for under existing treaties. They fear that the adoption of such a reservation so far from promoting the cause of peace, would seriously interfere with the policy of arbitration that has been successfully followed in recent years.

It is now announced that President Wilson will pocket the treaty if the radical reservations be adopted. The treaty question would then remain in statu quo and unless a new treaty were negotiated there would be no final settlement with Germany. The declaration of a state of peace by congress would not settle any of the multiplicity of important questions pending between this country and Germany.

It appears that all the republican senators including "the mild reservationists" are bound by a pledge to vote for the Lodge reservations, and then for the resolution of ratification embodying those reservations. After that they will be free to vote as they please. Senator Lodge holds that if ratification with reservations fails of passage the treaty cannot later be voted upon without reservations.

It is now regarded as a certainty that the treaty so loaded with reservations will not be ratified. It is the intention, however, of the republicans, if they possibly can, to cast the responsibility for defeating ratification upon the friends of the treaty. Senator Nitchebeck, however, will insist upon a vote on the treaty without reservations. In all probability both votes would fail of the necessary two-thirds majority.

It would then be in order to bring about a compromise by which the treaty would be saved, as it is hardly possible that two-thirds of the senate would want to kill the instrument outright.

ROUND-UP OF THE REDS

The arrest of two alleged anarchists in this city by the federal officers indicates how general and complete is the campaign against the Reds now being conducted by the Department of Justice.

It is the only sure method of coping with this evil. Too long we have tolerated the enemies of our government to carry on their revolutionary work, even to the extent of preaching it openly on our public streets.

The activity of the federal officers places a new duty upon the shoulders of our local police and other public officials. It is that of active co-operation. The police should keep an eye out for these foreign agitators who come here occasionally to barter their followers and stir them up in opposition to the government. It is incumbent upon the municipal council or perhaps the department of public safety to provide an ordinance or police rule under which nobody will be allowed to use the public streets or commons for the purpose of addressing public audiences without a permit.

This would also prevent candidates for office from speaking in public. Certainly, unless they secure a permit. It is but a short time since we had socialist candidates haranguing the people against capital, the wage system and in favor of a different form of government. That kind of business is to be stopped in Lowell and in every city in America.

"Ah! but where is your boasted liberty of speech?" these marauders will ask. We reply there is no liberty of speech permissible here for those who talk treason. The socialists, the anarchists, the I. W. W.'s and the Russian Bolsheviks are to be barred from the use of our public streets and some of them are to be denied a residence on American soil. They are to be sent to the ideal paradise of Bolshevism in Russia.

It is the duty of every citizen, therefore, to aid the government in its round-up of the Reds and of every other dangerous element that may be found operating in our city.

COMBATING THE BANDITS

How to combat the auto bandits who rob banks is a pressing problem for the police authorities of the nation. The robbery of the Randolph savings bank and the safe retreat of the thieves with about $36,000, is a matter that must arouse the police of the state and alarm some of the banks. It is usual in such cases to cut the telephone wires. Is it not possible to have a secret alarm connecting banks with a police station to be rung in emergencies?

The Randolph robbers might have been foiled by such a device. An underground wire would serve the purpose with a means of ringing an alarm at the police station, merely by pressing a button concealed from view. This arrangement might cost some hundreds of dollars, but it might help in catching the bandits if not in preventing them from committing the robbery.

AMERICANIZATION

The state board of education has organized its Americanization department and is sending out to school departments and other organizations letters dealing with the essential features of the work. Mr. John J. Mahoney, principal of the local Normal school, is now devoting all his time to this work and is having classes organized according to their needs as beginners, intermediates and advanced in the work of learning English. When the board's conditions are complied with by cities and towns the expenditure will be met by the state except for illiterate minors who are supposed to be taught in the regular schools, rather than in special classes. Local school departments are allowed to work under the new act with a good deal of discretion as to details inasmuch as conditions vary with the locality and the pupils to be instructed.

The state board, however, is entering upon this work of Americanization with a degree of enthusiasm that bespeaks good results.

PRIMARY RESULTS

In the returns of the primaries appears the state made out for city election by a majority of the voters. In some points it is different from most of the states and the predictions given out before the returns came in; but although it has a few surprises, it must be accepted as representing the majority. The sifting process has been gone through; if the electorate has made a mistake in the nomination of any particular candidate, the municipal election will offer an opportunity of correction.

Under the present plan of our municipal campaigns, it appears that the man who can make the best speech has a decided advantage, provided the people believe that he is honest and sincere in what he says. Inasmuch as speech making is not a necessary qualification for any of our public officials, with perhaps the exception of the mayor, the question arises whether it is wise to judge of candidates on their oratorical ability.

Hon. Charles S. Hamlin is mentioned for the vacancy caused by the appointment of Secretary Glass of the treasury department to the senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Martin of Virginia. Mr. Hamlin is a member of the federal reserve board and was its first governor. He is an old time democrat and thoroughly versed in all questions of state and national finance.

Without the United States, the League of Nations will go on, but it will not by any means command the respect nor will it ever attain the international influence it would have with the United States as a member.

The Esch railroad bill has been passed by the house, and now it remains to be seen whether it will meet favor by the senate or whether it will be sternly opposed by the railroads. It is a compromise between the Plumb bill on the one hand and the Cummins on the other.

Congress should make clear its intention to continue the Sugar Equalization Board during next year as otherwise the profiteers will put up the price of sugar to unprecedented figures.

Formerly the hot primary fights insured united action by democrats on election day; but since the democratic label has been removed, such fights leave their sores and seriously handicap the chances of the nominee's success.

The Bolsheviks of Russia have begun to nationalize the children who are to be taken from the parents and reared under the benign influences of Trotsky and Lenin in compliance with the atheistic doctrine, "No God, no Master!"

Such Is Life

Kings may come and kings may go, princes, too. Millionaires may live and millionaires may die. Baseball pennants may be won or lost, and stocks go up or down, while still the world wags on—

But let the coal miner lay down his pick and the earth shivers! Let the farmer loaf and the hungry millions are loathsome.

Yet the world applauds its kings, bows low before its millionaires and yells itself hoarse over its Ty Cobbs.

The Final Test

"I thought you said this bathing suit was in fast colors," said Blinks, indignantly, to the hostler of whom he had bought his suit that morning.

"Yes, sir, that's what I said," returned the hostler.

"Well, every wretched stripe on the thing has come off on my back," retorted Blinks.

"Ah, but wait until you try to get 'em off your back," smiled the hostler, suavely. "Then you'll see!"—London Tit-Bits.

How It Happened

"Well, I'll tell you," said a citizen of Sandy Mush, Ark., in reply to the inquiry of a neighbor. "I was over to Cattawampus yesterday, and inside of two hours there were three fights, two runaways, a fire, a lady horse-whipping a gent for something or nuther, and a couple of airplanes sailing over the town. And trying to get into the fights, keep out of the runaways, run to the fire, watch the lady, and keep my eyes fixed on the airplanes, I got knocked over four or five times and tramped on considerable, and I don't reckon my neck will work precisely right till the Lord knows when. How them folks in town manage to keep healthy with all that borrow going on amongst 'em is more than I can figure out. Burhning. If two hours of that fast living didn't mighty high ruin me!"—Judge.

His Last Alliance

An officer in a company of negro infantry was walking along a busy French road one day when he caught a glimpse of a drooping figure in khaki. The negro, with his rifle equipment strapped to his broad back, was sitting beside the road, chin in hands and elbows on knees.

Hearing the approaching footsteps, the black man looked up, rose slowly and saluted without any snap. "What's the matter with you?" asked the officer.

"Ah'm tired," answered the dusky one.

"Tired of what?"

"Tired of dis heah wiah."

"But you're fighting for your country, the country we all love. Don't you love your country?"

"Yes, sah, Mr. Cap'n. Ah sho loves mah country, but dorgone me if Ah evah gits outta dis heah wiah I ain't nevah gonna fall in love with another country as long as Ah live."—The Home Sector.

Drat the World!

(Copyright, 1919, N.E.A.)

Oh, drat the world! It won't keep right.

I talk to it and show it how And then, as though to celebrate, It breaks out in another row.

I preach to it of brotherhood; It seems to fathom what I mean. The more I preach, the more it sneers. It bumps its brother on the bean.

I teach it words of sweetened song, Or preach by the light of candle flame. It bumps its brother on the bean. That violence is rude and wrong. And just then someone throws a brick.

I warn it greed cannot succeed And avarice bears bitter fruit; It nods and smiles as though agreed, And strips me to my union suit.

I show it none can live alone, So we must trust our fellowmen; It bows its head and bows its knee, And not a soul will trust me then.

So drat the world! It won't go straight. For aught my lessons have been ample, It seems to me to just hang off and wait For me to set a good example!

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Murder was once a job for strong arms but now any weakling with a $5 revolver can become a killer. So said a police officer with whom I stopped to chat for a moment today. He was discussing some of his experiences back in the days of a generation or more ago when he was a "youngster" on the force. The favorite weapons of the bad men in those days were hammers, axes and sand bags, he said. Some of them preferred a knife, and some trusted to revolvers to carry out their designs, but the great majority preferred the "strong arm" method of disposing of their victim. Most criminals place their trust wholly in an automatic now, he declared, except in rare instances.

I got a peek at a 1920 calendar the other day and incidentally garnered a number of interesting facts relative to the year that will be born in less than two months. In the first place it will be noted as leap year, there being 22 days in February in 1920 instead of the usual 28. For another thing it will be presidential year, another quadrennial feature. Most of the holidays will be celebrated on Monday during the coming year, although New Year's day itself, a legal holiday in Massachusetts, will fall on Thursday, February 22. Washington's birthday, will fall on a Sunday and will be celebrated the following Monday. April 19, Patriots

Exhausted at sixteen regains strength with RED PILLS for Pale and Weak Women.

MISS EMMA MESSIER

I am sixteen years of age, and last year I was excessively weak, owing to the fact that I was forced to start working at a very early age, with the result that I soon became exhausted. My mother, who had great confidence in the efficacy of RED PILLS, persuaded me to take them during the period of one year. Today, thanks to the good results obtained from their regular use, I am feeling much stronger and have more ambition to attend to my daily duties. We always have a few boxes of RED PILLS on hand at my home, and I am only too happy to say that in my opinion RED PILLS are an excellent tonic for weak and suffering young girls.

MISS EMMA MESSIER, 59 Clifton St., North Side, N.Y.

They are always sold in boxes of fifty pills, 50 cents box, 6 boxes for $2.50. See that the name of the "Franko-American Chemical Company Limited" is on every box.

day will come on a Monday. Both Memorial day, May 30, and the Fourth of July will fall on Sunday and will be celebrated the next day. Labor day, of course, will be observed on the first Monday of September, the sixth day of the month next year, October 12. Columbus day, will be observed on Tuesday, Nov. 11, Armistice day, on Thursday and two weeks later, Thanksgiving day on Thursday, Nov. 25. Christmas day will fall on a Saturday in 1920.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Below is what the press agencies of the different theatres say of the current attractions and of others to come:

OPERA HOUSE

Snappy comedy, handled with the proverbial "pen" is always good entertainment. That's what is in store for the patrons of the Opera House, who are scheduled to witness one of the remaining performances of the week of Fred Jackson's great three-part play, "The Naughty Wife," which is being so cleverly given by the Lowell Players. Nothing quite as good in its line, has been produced on the local stock stage in seasons, and capacity audiences at all performances testify to its qualifications and merit as a play. You will giggle, chuckle and laugh yourself through three interesting, amusing acts of byplay and story. Miss Marguerite Fields acts the part of the feckle young wife in a most entertaining manner and Mr. Meenan, the leading man, treats the role of the husband in his usual masterly way. The others, including Miss Helen Prebarn and William Melville, are most enjoyable. Don't miss it. Next week, Kate Douglas Wiggin's big success, "Another Carey's Chickens."

THE STRAND

The fact that hundreds were turned away at all performances yesterday at The Strand, testifies very forcibly the fact that D. W. Griffith's super-production, "Broken Blossoms" is every bit as good as advertised. Those who were fortunate enough to gain entrance to the theatre up to date unqualifiedly pronounce it the most unusual, and at the same time the most gripping photoplay ever seen on a local screen.

No More Catarrh

This Simple Home Treatment Has Stood the Test of Time

Every fall and winter, for more than twenty years, thousands of people have made it a daily practice to breathe the air of Hyomel and so keep themselves free from Catarrh, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat and Influenza.

"This is certain and you should try it. If you will breathe Hyomel daily, as directed, it will free you and keep you free from all these troubles or it won't cost you a cent.

Any reliable druggist can supply you with the Complete Hyomel Outfit, including a hard rubber pocket inhaler. The inhaler will last a life time and extra bottles of the liquid Hyomel cost but a few cents. A few drops of oil in the inhaler will last for days and its pure, soothing, antiseptic, healing air, breathed deep in the air passages of your nose and throat, will keep you free from coughs, colds, influenza and catarrh all winter long. Pleasant to use, takes but a few minutes daily and is guaranteed to satisfy or money back—Adv.

DIRECTORS DISCUSS REORGANIZATION

Discussion of plans of reorganization featured last night's meeting of the directors of the Lowell board of trade. The American city bureau, a modern civic organization, was represented at the session by W. E. Holler, who spoke on the value of an intensive campaign for membership. The directors unanimously voted to conduct such a drive in January, but left the plan of action toward reorganization in the hands of the following committee: John M. O'Donoghue, president; Paul B. Chandler, Robert F. Marden, Jude C. Wadleigh and George C. Fairburn.

The directors accepted the report of the committee on public improvements in its recommendation of an increase to $5 in the pay of Lowell policemen, thereby going on record as favoring this advance. For new men coming on to the force, the directors suggest a wage of $4.25 per day for the first three months; $4.50 for the second three months; $4.75 for the third three months and $5 thereafter.

Paul Chandler reported for the committee on transportation regarding improved traffic conditions in and near Merrimack square and offered a suggestion that the city might well borrow $1,000,000 outside the debt limit for general reconstruction of streets, the money to be expended by a commission. The suggestion was not accepted, but referred back to the transportation committee with instructions to study the problem further and offer a definite program of expenditure to accompany the plan.

The board accepted a part of the community service program, but clipped from it the recommendation for endorsement. John C. Leggat reported on the investigation of the sugar supply and said he had been unable to find any reason for the unequal distribution in Lowell.

TILLY TAKES TEA AT THE PALACE

Why shouldn't the world's finest cow be wine and dine in style. The San Francisco Ad Club answered that question by having Tilly Alcarin, this planet's leading boss, chief prize of the house of Holstein—as special luncheon guest in the ball room of the Palace hotel, San Francisco. A professor of agriculture sang Tilly's praises in a speech telling how she had produced 33,253 pounds of milk in one year, over 120,000 pounds in four consecutive years, and in six years—her total milk-producing career—156,776 pounds of milk, so rich that it made 5,141.35 pounds of butter at goodness knows how much a pound. Yesterday Tilly munched her yesterday's lunch, stored up another for tomorrow, and took the plaudits calmly. She is owned by A. W. STATE AND CITY PROBLEMS WEIGHED

Problems which confront state and city governments of the present day were outlined rather informally at the Centralville M. E. church last night by Senator Arthur W. Colburn and Mayor Perry D. Thompson. The meeting was under the auspices of the men's organization of the church and was held in the auditorium. A. L. Hiser, president of the club, presided and first introduced Senator Colburn.

The legislator talked on Massachusetts issues—the recent report of the commission to investigate the street railway situation, the question of higher wages for school teachers, preparation for the tercentenary celebration, the high cost of living, appropriation for the state guard and many others. He made an earnest plea for improved school conditions and read anarchist literature as a sample of the dangerous brands being thrown upon the fire of socialism.

Mayor Thompson, with a speaking voice reduced to almost a whisper through laryngitis, spoke rather briefly and from no announced text. He named three things in the order of their importance in his estimation, which can and will save the country from destruction. The first was religion and by that he said he meant Christian religion in the broad sense. Laying his hand on the Bible beside him, he said that's the greatest agency in the world for the saving of mankind against Bolshevism. His second agency was education and the third organizations of people such as the brotherhood, fraternities and other bodies.

MITCHELL BOYS' SCHOOL

The Mitchell school football team will journey to Concord this afternoon to play the Middlesex school third team and a fast and exciting game is expected.

This evening at the Mitchell school Mr. Donald B. McMillan will lecture on "Four Years in the Frozen North." Mr. McMillan has many wonderful pictures of the Arctic regions, and a delightful evening is anticipated. Ellierica friends of the school are invited.

Tomorrow, the Mitchell school junior football team will play the Mill Brook school juniors at Concord.

Nov. 21, Friday, the Mitchell school first team plays its annual game with Billerica high, at the Mitchell field.

A game is pending with the Mill Brook school first team to be played at Billerica Monday or Tuesday of next week. This game will close the football season which has been a very successful one for the Mitchell school.

MASSACHUSETTS IN LEAD AS USUAL

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Massachusetts led all of the other New England states in the total sales of Thrift, War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates for the month of October, according to the latest reports received by Mrs. C. R. Burlingame, statistical director, savings division, First Federal reserve district. The Bay State also leads all of the other New England states in the sales of these government securities in the campaign to date.

The sales in Massachusetts for the month of October totalled $257,008.45. Approximately $2,537,630.33 worth of Thrift Stamps, War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates have been sold in the Bay State to date. Next to Massachusetts in the total sales of these securities for the month of October is Rhode Island with a total sales of $172,556.06. Connecticut, however, is second to Massachusetts in the total sales of these securities in the campaign to date.

MEMORIAL MONUMENT IN PAWTUCKETVILLE

Over $1000 has been secured for the erection of the memorial monument in Pawtucketville in honor of the young men and women from that district who stood behind Uncle Sam during the war, according to reports made at an enthusiastic and well attended meeting of Pawtucketville residents in the Pawtucketville Congregational church last evening.

Plans for the welcome home celebration which will be held December 3 are also fast rounding into shape, and it was announced that two prominent Boston speakers will make addresses at the banquet in high school hall which will be a feature of Pawtucketville's tribute to her boys who fought and won.

A children's entertainment will be held Saturday afternoon in the Pawtucket school hall to raise further funds for the memorial monument. An elaborate program has been prepared and a large attendance is expected. The program will commence at 2 o'clock.

C. F. Cronin, chairman of the committee in charge of the coming celebration, requests that all men and women from the district who were in the service send their names and addresses to Rev. Mr. Lyon, secretary, in order that each may receive an invitation to the banquet.

The next meeting of the committees in charge of the welcome home and memorial fund will be held Monday evening in the Pawtucket church. Final arrangements for the celebration will be completed at this meeting, it was said.

In connection with the memorial fund E. Axon, chairman of the entertainment committee announced that the committee would stage a concert at the Pawtucket church on the evening of December 10.

Miss Wholey, chairman of the dance committee, reported that plans had been completed for a dance to be held at the Pawtucket boathouse December 5.

TREAT IN STORE FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Lowell music lovers are to have a rare treat on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week when the Mountain Ash Welsh Male Chorus will sing at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Men of the Round Table. It was decided to run the concert two evenings owing to the international reputation of this famous choir, thereby giving all a chance to hear these men.

There is a sufficient number of music loving people in Lowell who will be interested in music delightfully and attractively presented by a high class and expensive attractive. The Mountain Ash Male Chorus is just such a company, presenting a program which pleases the most fastidious. The artists of this wonderful choir, under the direction of Mr. Glyndwr Richards, are educators in that their concerts uplift and cultivate a taste for better things.

We read from the press of other cities where they have been staging lately "Nothing quite so good as this choir." Washington, D. C., Herald: "Their work is a revolution in the art of singing." New York Herald: "Faultlessly trained as individuals, collectively, nothing short of marvelous." Syracuse Standard.
These concerts will, undoubtedly be among the best given in our city this season.

The City Primaries

on the stump and kept the voters supplied with campaign material. Mayor Thompson, certain of the nomination confined his efforts to frequent appeals in the press.

When seen this morning, former Mayor O'Donnell's comment on the result was: "It's the younger man's day." Mayor Thompson's big strength was in the republican wards, while Mr. Gilbride's chief strength came from the so-called democratic wards, although his vote was evenly distributed throughout the city. It is expected that the contest for election will be one of the most interesting in the city's history.

Three weeks intervene between now and election day.

Mr. Salmon's big vote may be directly traced to widespread popularity and a judiciously conducted campaign. It was his introductory effort in politics and rarely has a novice made such a distinct impression. Although he made no effort to exploit the fact, few people forgot his work as an overseas secretary for the Knights of Columbus in the world war and the hold on the local public which he gained at that time was evidently a thing of more than ephemeral quality.

Mr. Donnelly, always a powerful vote getter, was expected to be among the leaders. Mr. Brown, another contender whom students of local political affairs rarely omit from serious consideration, showed that his strength and hold on the public are still active. Mr. Morse lost strength because of his action in laying off men in the water department, despite his statement that such procedure was absolutely essential to the maintenance of the department. Mr. Cogrove has long been a figure to be seriously considered in any fight he enters and his big vote caused little surprise.

The school committee fight which introduced 12 contestants was almost any man's victory until the polls closed. Mr. Delaney, the high man, was included in most states because of his wide acquaintance and ability to bring his candidacy before the people. James E. Markham is a young lawyer. Dr. James H. Rooney, a well known dentist and James E. Lyle, a prominent jeweler. Their walks of life have brought them in contact with many people and their campaigns were all waged actively.

A Large Vote

Yesterday's ideal weather was a big factor in bringing out an exceptionally heavy vote. The total number of ballots cast in the mayoralty campaign, from which may be deducted the total male vote at the polls, was 13,491 out of a male registration of 17,606. The female registration was 6359 and a fair proportion of this number voted.

The registration for both men, and women totaled 23,956, the largest for any city primaries in the city's history and the vote itself will be recorded well up among the highest in the city's primary annals.

If the same vote is cast for mayor at the city election or a slightly higher vote, the winning man must secure approximately 6800 votes in order to win.

One of the features of the returns was the complete absence of blanks in the mayoralty vote in Precinct 1 of Ward 4. Rarely is a zero chalked up in the blank column.

The returns came in rapidly last evening. It was about 8 o'clock when Precinct 1 of Ward 1, the police station polling booth, sent in its figures. Thereafter, the results were forthcoming in a rapid stream until 10 o'clock when there was a slight let-up. At 11 o'clock final results were available. Precinct 2 of Ward 3 was the last to make returns.

In order to get the returns from a number of the outlying polling booths to city hall, the motorcycles used by the police department were employed and accelerated the work to a considerable extent.

One of the largest crowds ever present on a primaries or election night pressed its way into city hall last evening and the newspapersmen and official clerks had little room in which to work. But everything went off without a hitch.

Two Years Ago

In 1917 Mayor Thompson polled 2534 votes at the primaries in comparison with 4563 this year. Mr. Gilbride's 1917 vote was 2499 in comparison with 4072 this year. Mr. O'Donnell's 1917 strength was 2135 and this year 1015.

Of the three aldermanic candidates who also ran two years ago, Mr. Donnelly made a gain of more than 200 votes. He was given 3604 votes in 1917 and 3534 this year. Mr. Morse lost almost 900 votes this year in comparison with two years ago. In 1917 he received 4045 votes for the nomination and this year only 3146. Mr. Cogrove received 2350 votes in 1917 and 3107 votes this year, a marked gain.

At the city election, Dec. 2, voters will elect one of the nominees for mayor, two for aldermen and two for school committee. Those that are elected will serve for two years unless there is a change in the form of charter in the meantime.

Historical Sketch Of Your Watch
HOW IT'S MADE—THE BALANCE WHEEL
'ROUND THE GLOBE IN THREE YEARS

If, instead of running backward and forward, the balance wheel ran straight around like the wheel of a wagon, it would cover a circuit representing the circumference of the globe in three years' time, its rate of speed being 20 miles a day. Running ten hours a day, at a speed of 28 miles an hour, a locomotive would take 89 days to traverse the distance covered by the little wheels of the watch in three years.

The pivots or journals upon which the balance rotates are about twice the size of a human hair. These journals have for their bearings two little jewels made of the hardest ruby or sapphire and brought to the highest possible polish. They weigh 1-32 of a grain each and are worth in watches nearly $50,000 a pound.

Little "d" Democrat, Prince Edward Albert, Heir to the British Throne, Received a Royal American Welcome

BY EVELYN DRUM-HUNT
WASHINGTON, D. C., November 19.—
Hail the fairy prince!
He's just under twenty-five;
He's a bachelor;
And he is all this:

His royal highness Prince Edward, Albert, Christian, George, Andrew, Patrick, David of Windsor, Prince of Wales, Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Glamorgan, Grand Steward of Scotland, a lieutenant of the royal navy, captain of the grenadier guards, honorary colonel in the Cheshires and during the war he was aide to Field Marshal French and a general staff officer with the British army in the field.

Why is the United States interested in the visit of this young man? Partly of course because of the position he holds as the eldest son of the ruler of one of the greatest nations of the earth, but surely also because of himself.

A Little "d" Democrat

For there is an air of romance about this young Lochinvar who has come out of the east—a picturesqueness that brings thoughts of fairy princes of childhood tales.

In the first place, Edward Albert, by all accounts, puts "on no airs" and that endears him at once to the American heart. He has proven himself a little "d" democrat. It is a foregone conclusion that he will receive a royal American welcome when he visits Washington.

He is a man's man and a woman's man. In Canada they've had a ripping time making a cowboy out of him, dressing him up as an Indian, getting him into the whirlpool of stock exchange, dancing him, feting him, golfing him, sending him out into the deep woods to hunt big game—and he has come up smiling.

And Prince Charming

Here, then, is the reason we're for him and for his visit in our land—because he has shown himself a "good scout," debonair, good humored, boyish in his enjoyment, "Romp," not "pomp" is his word.

Perhaps, too, the prince will find a Cinderella somewhere before he returns to England.

And the old law says he may marry the girl of his heart, regardless of her social status or nationality—whether she wears silks and satins or just sells them.

The king and queen of England can petition parliament to make any marriage the prince might desire royal.

Wherefore, here's a prince charming, tall, slim, blonde, handsome, heir to the throne of a great kingdom, a lover of life—and open to engagements.

Of course all the world is interested. The first British heir apparent to bear the title of the Prince of Wales was the son of Edward I, who acquired it in 1301. He, Edward II, was born in Wales at Carnarvon, in 1284, after his father had invaded that country. To appease the conquered, Edward I gave his heir the title of Prince of Wales.

Negotiations are now under way to purchase a Welsh residence for the present Prince of Wales, Cardiff Castle, owned by the Marquis of Bute, is under consideration.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT AT THE Y.W.C.A.

House residents at the Y.W.C.A. presented an entertainment program of merit last evening when the pageant, "America's Challenge," was followed by an "Oriental Pow-Wow," featuring bright-eyed maidens dressed in the garb of the far east and Japan. The pageant was directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Van Duersen, assisted by Miss Adelaide Noyes and Miss Ella L. Calderwood. Rooms on the third floor of the building were given over to the oriental atmosphere and booths, a tea room, fortune telling and an opium den. Japanese curios and hangings were loaned by Miss Russell.

Among those taking part were: Amy French, Marion Sawyer, Mrs. Addie Z. Livingston, Elsie F. Bradt, Doris Willington, Dorothy Brissett, Rose Macanley, Edith Doole, Gladys Thurston, Bertha Morrow, Mabel Kenyon, Elsa Reslow, Ethel Fraser, Nelda Cross, Edna Laurin, Mildred Brodie, Mabel Reardon, Gladys Shaffer, Gladys Hamilton, Emily Pearson, Lillian Smith, Alberta McQueen, Esther Simpson and Miss Willson.

Making a purely vegetable Medicine

1875—1919

In 1875, Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., gathered and dried the roots and herbs which she used in the now famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, from the fields and forests,—then steeped them on her kitchen stove and filled a few bottles at a time, to alleviate the suffering of her women friends, neighbors and acquaintances, and the success of this medicine was unparalleled.

After 44 Years

These illustrations show the present method by which vast quantities of this well-known remedy are produced and from exactly the same kind of roots and herbs used by Mrs. Pinkham in the beginning.

First—The various herbs used are of the finest quality, and gathered at the time their medicinal strength is the highest.

Second—After the herbs are properly ground and mixed, the medicinal properties are extracted by soaking in large stone jars, covered.

Third—Then the extract is drained through percolators, acting somewhat like a coffee percolator.

Fourth—To insure a thoroughly pure medicine, it is carefully pasteurized by heat in special apparatus, and bottled hot.

Throughout the entire process, from the crude herb to the finished medicine in bottle, cleanliness and exactness are the watch-words.

The Reliability of Testimonials Guaranteed

The testimonials published by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company come to them unsolicited. Never knowingly have they published an untruthful letter, never is a letter published without the written consent of the writer. The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness. It is easy to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; and their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

LOWELL GRANGE ENTERTAINS

The Lowell Grange entertained members and a generous representation of the public at large at a pop concert given in Highland hall last evening. The Lowell Girls' club orchestra gave a splendid program and readings by Mrs. Frank Morse and songs by Miss Geneva Hanson added to the pleasure of the occasion. The program was presented under the direction of the three past executives of the grange: Mrs. Margaret Sarre, Harry Sawyer and W. G. Bowen. A brief business meeting followed the entertainment.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmital (double strength), add to it 1 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—ad.

FIFTH STREET CHURCH

Elery B. Gordon of Philadelphia, manager of the National Retail Coal Merchants Assn., was the principal speaker at a business meeting of the Fifth Street Baptist church last evening. Mr. Gordon's talk dealt mainly with the coal situation as it exists today, and his remarks proved both interesting and instructive.

Reservation Adopted Against It—Congress May Declare
State of Peace

(Special to The Sun)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 19.—The printed statement of Sir Andrew McPhail to the effect that one of the first steps taken under the League of Nations would be the acquisition by Canada of a big tract of land in northern Maine and add the same to Canadian possessions created considerable stir here, coming as it did at the moment the League of Nations debate is nearing the end. The plan as outlined by Sir Andrew would give Canada something like 1000 square miles of United States territory and change the existing boundary line between Maine and Canada so to throw 150 miles or more of Canadian owned railroads now running on American territory over into the possession of Canada. Sir Andrew claims this can be done under article 19, section 1 of the treaty, which reads: "The assembly may from time to time advise the reconsideration by members of the league of treaties which have become inapplicable and the consideration of international conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world." According to the prevailing sentiment of Maine there seems to be little doubt but what the peace of the world would be endangered if Great Britain or Canada tried to grab from Maine 1000 square miles or 1000 square miles of United States territory. Including the potato crop of Aroostook county. Moreover, the new boundary as proposed by Sir Andrew involves all New England by removing to Canada one of its big commercial interests. The proposed new boundary line was established a century and a half ago and would slice off a population of more than 100,000 people, much valuable timber land, water power and the enormous potato crop for which Maine is justly famous and which stands second in the potato crops of the entire United States. Sir Andrew claims this can be done on the ground that the land is an outpost which fell to the United States as the spoil of war a century and a half ago and which was further conceded to this country by treaty a century later. Sir Andrew admits it might be difficult to make such a move, but urges that it is not impossible and is eminently proper. At first the idea of such acquisition of United States territory under the league was scouted by the Maine congressional delegation, but after Senator Johnson of California had read into the records of the senate Sir Andrew's statement, and Senator Hale of Maine scolded round and introduced an amendment to the pending reservation covering such matters. The Hale amendment was adopted by an overwhelming vote and now the boundary line of Maine seems to be protected according to the terms of the league in the only form in which it can hope for ratification at the hands of the senate. Senator Fernald of Maine, who at first was inclined to regard the suggestion of Sir Andrew as a pipe-dream, hesitated himself to see to it that no loophole was left whereby Maine's boundary could be disturbed, and reminded his questioners that in such a case, although neither the United States nor Great Britain could have a voice in the settlement, yet the five dependencies of Great Britain would have a vote, while the United States would have no representation whatsoever. Mr. Fernald added, except the reservation adopted by the foreign relations committee had been adopted he "wouldn't undertake to say what might

A PROMINENT MAN'S TESTIMONY

Alton, New Hampshire.—"I derived great benefit from the use of Dr. Pierce's medicines, and wish I had taken them just as soon as I commenced to feel 'out of sorts,' as the old folks used to say. I had a nervous breakdown, suffered from indigestion, gas in stomach, and at times the distress seemed to be all thru my body, which made me feel very bad. I thought I should never be well again, but I thank God for creating herbs that will heal all diseases if we only know what they are and where to find them, and I can truly say that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Ironic (Iron-Tonic) Tablets and other remedies have done me more good than anything else I have ever tried. I can recommend Dr. Pierce's remedies to all as I believe they are the best real herb medicines."

H. P. TIBBETTS.

There is but one way to have good health, and that is to put and keep your stomach in good order. This is easy to do if you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which can be procured of any druggist, or a trial size will be sent you from Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of ten cents.

Two Cabinet Vacancies

The resignation of Carter Glass as secretary of the treasury to accept the appointment of senator from Virginia in place of the late Senator Martin, leaves two vacancies in the cabinet. We now have no secretary of the treasury or secretary of commerce, although the most vital of reconstruction measures are connected with those departments. With President Wilson too ill to attend to routine administration work, and with the cabinet lacking two important members, officials of secondary rank are doing admirable work to bridge over the gap and no ill effects are felt.

It is understood that the chief reason both branches of congress are holding in session is to safeguard the possible need of action on a resolution declaring the war with Germany at an end, if the treaty and league fail of ratification or are not acted on by the president, as has been intimated. It would be the case if the document is sent to him in the only form in which it can hope for ratification at the hands of the senate. It is understood that in such an event congress will adopt a resolution declaring a state of war no longer exists, and which would need to be passed jointly by senate and house. What the action of the president would be under those circumstances is entirely a matter of conjecture and one man's guess is as good as another's.

FOREST FIRE PATROLS ON THE WING

At the conclusion of the first season in which aviators have maintained an organized fire patrol United States forest service states that the record made by the airplane has proved beyond question its effectiveness as an aid in discovering and locating forest fires. For three months uninterrupted service was maintained, and a total of 745 flights covering 32,605 miles were made. Many fires were discovered, located and reported in advance of the regular forest service detection organization.

Six patrol routes covering national forest areas of high value in California were followed, and twice each day six Curtiss airplanes covered the better part of 9,000,000 acres of rough, mountainous, heavily timbered country. The average non-stop run was 150 miles; the average round trip 320 miles.

Beginning Sept. 1, eight airplanes covered twice each day more than 18,000,000 acres of national forest. Eight additional airplanes were used on alternate days in relief for necessary repairs and to allow of pilots.

Sixteen pilots and 22 mechanics were assigned to the work.

In the discovery of fires the air patrol showed itself a very efficient and it is declared that it can be made practically 100 per cent. efficient, either by providing for a longer period in the air or possibly by making the time of flight correspond more closely to the hours of the day when the largest percentage of fires start.

Experience shows that while the effective "discovery radius" varies with atmospheric conditions and the height of the observer, an observer at an altitude of 5000 feet can detect a fire at least 30 miles distant.

BELGRADE SHELL-TORN AND DESOLATE

BELGRADE, Serbia (By the Associated Press).—Belgrade remains today as the Germans and Austrians left it—shell-shattered, bomb-torn and desolate. Owing to lack of materials, money and labor, no steps have yet been taken by the authorities to restore the scores of residences, public buildings and other property that fell under the enemy bombardment. Nothing has been done to repair even the royal palace, which, windowless, scarred and neglected, looks like a great empty barracks.

The Serbian capital has a gloomy, depressing air about it, and this atmosphere is shared to some extent by the people, who sit with morose faces. Belgrade amuses itself. There are few restaurants, theatres, cinemas, places of diversion or entertainment in Belgrade. At night the city has all the stillness and repose of a tomb. It may be, quite naturally, that the country is still mourning its losses, for it has been continuously at war for seven years.

The retail stores display only scanty stocks. Some of them are closed entirely. Cheap articles of jewelry and tinware find their way from Austria and Germany, while perfumes, scented soaps and silk stockings come from Paris. Wearing apparel of all kinds is high in price. The Serbian franc has fallen to low purchasing value.

As in most war-affected countries, there is a tremendous amount of reconstruction work to be done in Serbia. Broken bridges, shattered railways, ruined factories and destroyed machinery will have to be replaced. Serbians say the material and, to some extent, the money and labor, will have to come from the outside, for Serbia, strained and straitened by seven years of war, is almost destitute of the means to accomplish this task herself. She is looking hopefully to the United States to help her in this direction. There is a constant plea for American engineers, businessmen and materials.

JACK THE CLIPPER STEALS GOLDEN LOCKS

DETROIT.—Detectives are trying to trap a Jack the Clipper who clips off the tresses of school girls. He operates at public gatherings and in movie theatres.

As many women subjects, as just everyday common sense that causes all who eat to be unstinted in their praise of Royal Lunch Biscuit—one of the National Biscuit Company's satisfying helps to the hunger.

Competent, dependable, pretty Mrs. Harrison spoke for it. "Royal Lunch Biscuit" was a bulwark of strength. Mrs. Wilks, a conscientious little newlywed who was wearing herself out in the kitchen, found it a great help (with them). "Royal Lunch Biscuit" is a counselor almost reverently.

"I've seen many young married women like you baking all the time and good looking. I'm the oldest. But the day I got married, I was a little old-fashioned. The secret was in the Royal Lunch Biscuit."

So popular are Royal Lunch Biscuits in New England and elsewhere that they have become an every-meal-time staple in many homes. Substantial, yet delightfully tender, and with a mild sweetness, they add to the enjoyment of preserves, milk and other everyday food. The name ROYAL LUNCH is on every biscuit.

Sold by the pound and in the famous In-er-seal Trade Mark package.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

"They are, first, healthful, and second, economical. Their packing allows no dust or dirt of any kind to impair their cleanly wholesomeness; they are sold by the pound (the name 'Royal Lunch' is on every cracker) or you may get them in In-er-seal Trade Mark which is the only way to keep them fresh. My Todd calls them 'Lunch Biscuits' table staples and they are all of that. They express the very spirit of the new house-keeping.

Sporting News and Newsy Sports

TIGERS WIN IN LAST MINUTES OF PLAY

With the score tied and less than a minute to play, Fall River jumped through two goals in quick succession and defeated Lowell by a fast polo game at the Crescent rink last night. The score was 4 to 2.

The teams entered the final period divided and both outfits played strenuously to get the advantage. The goal tenders were subjected to a heavy bombardment, but they were in fine form and held off the attackers. The game was getting set for overtime play, when George Hart hit one from an angle that went by Pierce's goal. There was just a minute and 55 seconds to go. Lowell fans called for a score, and while all hands played desperately, the Tigers led Jean of the visitors out the "blink" on our chances by slamming another in. A few seconds later the big horn sounded and it was all over.

Lowell put up a great exhibition, considering its handicap in having McCormack, a Providence player, as its star. Harkins' play was "The Kid" worked hard but he failed to fit in with the combination and consequently the other players were forced to shoulder the burden. Harkins never played harder. He did some remarkable work and several times brought the game to their feet by his brilliant dashes down the floor and through the Fall River defense men. Griffith, too, worked strenuously on both offense and defense and his team work with Pierce was a treat to look upon. For Fall River Jean played a strong game and he was ably assisted by Pierce and Hart. The trio played a strong game and the combination of Cusick and Purcell took good care of the defensive operations.

Fall River got two in the first period. Pierce debur the shooting. Lowell tied the count in the second, with McCormack and Harkins the men behind the drives. The final round was won by the winner in doubt until in the final two minutes of play when Fall River came through with a brace that spelled victory. The score:

ALL STAR SHOW HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

An All-Star show with three ten-round bouts and one six round event, will be staged at the Crescent rink tomorrow night.

Pekin Kid Herman, regarded as one of the leading bantamweights in the west, will meet Tony Vatlin, the Brighton "Ironman," in one of the ten-round numbers. Herman has been training at Martin Flaherty's gymnasium for over a week and is said to be in great condition. He came east with the promise of several good matches, and already has issued a challenge to meet Jimmy Wills, the English champion, now in this country. Vatlin is well and favorably known here as a satisfactory performer. Billy Duffy of Everett, who won from Young Ketchell here a few weeks ago and Shaver O'Brien, the southpaw from South Boston, will clash in another ten rounder. They are action boys who always fight hard all the way. Johnny Gray and Johnny Downs,

POLO NOTES

A fine game.

Jean has his "Tigers" travelling at a speedy clip.

Harkins' work last night was about as classy as one would care to see. Several times he crossed on the big yellow and broke through much to the delight of the fans.

Lowell needs Davies or some other experienced first rush.

There was a big attendance of the ladies at last night's game.

"Bob" Hart, formerly of Lowell, who is now leading the league in goal-getting, will come here Friday night to battle the New Bedford Whalers for a game with Lowell at the Crescent rink. With "Bob" will be the ever popular Barney Doherty, Paul Gardner, Mossie Conley, and either Kehoe or Mulligan.

The last time New Bedford was here Lowell was given a bad beating, but the Harkins crew are out for revenge.

Camels win you on their quality!

Any way you consider Camels—quality, blend, mellowness, body and satisfaction—they are made to absolutely meet your taste as no other cigarette ever did, or could!

You have only to smoke some Camels to prove they are a cigarette revelation—the most delightful cigarettes you ever puffed on!

Understand this: Camels are an expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos. The unusual Camel blend gives smokers mildness and smoothness never before believed possible in cigarettes.

Yet, Camels have all the body the most exacting smoker can ask.

Camel CIGARETTES

You will prefer this expert Camel blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

Camels flavor is really fascinating! And, so refreshing that no matter how liberally you smoke, Camels will not tire your taste!

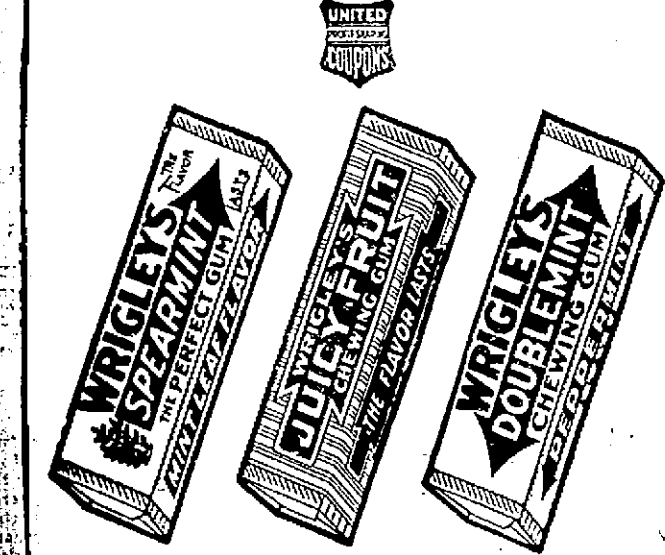

Camels are free from any unpleasant cigarette odor, too!

So great is our confidence that Camels will exceed your cigarette desires that we ask you to put them in comparison with any cigarette in the world at any price!

THE FLAVOR LASTS SO DOES THE PRICE!

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in glassine-paper-covered cartons. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO. Winston-Salem, N. C.

Two great rivals, who have performed in and around Boston many times, are scheduled to appear in the third ten-round event. They, too, are noted for their aggressiveness when within the roped arena. There will be a six-round preliminary.

Jim Owens dropped into The Sun office yesterday and announced that he would like to meet the winner of the Avilla-Searney bout, scheduled to be put on here on Thanksgiving day. Jim says that he had little time to train for his last bout with Avilla, which resulted in defeat, but has been training ever since and feels confident that he will reverse conditions in his next appearance here.

Friedman Beats McCoy
BOSTON, Nov. 19.—Abraham Friedman of New York got the decision over Benny McCoy of Baltimore in 12 rounds at the Armory A.A. club last night. The bout was slow and listless.

The other 12-rounder was a hummer, however. Tommy Elms of Newark, N. J., and Charlie Bergen of New Haven battled to a draw in a dozen sensational fast rounds.

At Nelson of Manchester, N. H., got the decision in 10 rounds over Joe Farnen of East Boston in a rough, rugged fight. In the prelim, Phil Christie of the South End earned a decision in six rounds over Young Collins of the North End.

TEXTILE ENDS BRILLIANT SEASON FRIDAY
The Lowell Textile football team will terminate a very successful season, Friday, November 21, when it meets the strong team representing Boston University.

Results of the games played by Textile up to date are as follows:

Textile	Opponents	Score

12	Dean Academy	7
13	New Bedford Textile	9
14	New Hampshire State	12

defense will be chosen from the following men who have proven worthy of her confidence.

Scott and Lemire—centre: A. Gooseberry, Schwarz, Cochran, Cockcroft, guards: Stevens, Brown, Lombard, Miller, Goller, tackles: Capt. Prescott, Goulet, Perry, J. Goody, Parham, ends: Goldman, Marble, Schneller, quarterback: Lombard, Macher, fullback: Wentworth, Prince, Mott, Paine, Walker—half backs. This is the first year that Textile has really taken on teams of her class and she has demonstrated that she can rightfully hold her own with any small college in the east.

A good share of the credit for this season's showing is due Coach Hudson, who has been untiring in his efforts to turn out a winning combination. He has been handicapped due to the lack of time for practice and also to the fact that the team got a late start. However, this is only the beginning.

Some idea of Textile's strength can be gained from the showing against New Hampshire state, a team so far undefeated this season. Textile tackled a tartar in B. U., a team that was only barely beaten 10-7 by the fast Norwich University aggregation. This fact, however, only makes Textile more determined to win its big game.

This will be the last chance for Lowell football fans to see the Textile team in action and a large crowd is expected to attend. Textile's first line of

of a bright future for the team, as it loses only two men through graduation.

THANK YOU

Mayor Thompson Appreciative of Voters' Confidence

"I deeply appreciate the splendid support that was given me at the polls yesterday. It is indeed most gratifying to know that without an active campaign on my part, my administration was sufficiently satisfying to nearly 5000 people to merit such an endorsement. I can add only that I intend to wage a clean, vigorous campaign for re-election and hope to prove worthy of the compliment paid me yesterday."

Owen E. Brennan and Victor F. Jewett, successful candidates for representative at the recent state election, have filed their expense accounts with City Clerk Flynn. Neither paid or promised anything, according to their accounts.

Why So Many Prefer The Brunswick

THE Brunswick Method of Reproduction is the wonder of the phonographic art. And it wins acclaim from two principal ideas: The Utona and The Brunswick Tone Amplifier.

The Utona is an exclusive invention, an all-record player to be had only on The Brunswick. It plays all makes of records as they should be played—with the proper needle and the precise weight—and with the proper diaphragm.

The Brunswick Tone Amplifier is built entirely of wood, according to a new process. In this "throat" of the phonograph all metal is discarded. This brings purity and volume of tone. There is an absence of the usual metallic sounds. You've never heard any record at its best until it is played on The Brunswick.

A tone test at a Brunswick shop is conclusive evidence. Your ear is a quick judge. Your admiration for this superior phonograph will compel you to award The Brunswick first place. Come in today. Your judgment is final.

N. Y. BROKER ARRESTED

Held in $500,000 Thefts—Charge Messengers Helped to Rob N. Y. Firms

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—David W. Sullivan, a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, was arrested yesterday on a charge of larceny.

"The American Surety company, which has been working on the case with the district attorney's office, declared in a statement last night that it is believed the arrest will 'reveal a number of messenger thefts among downtown brokerage offices totalling at least $500,000.'"

Sullivan, who is in partnership with Norman Bowles, under the brokerage name of Sullivan & Company, was arrested in his office at 10 Wall street, on orders of Alfred J. Talley, acting district attorney. The prisoner, according to the Surety company, was accused of acting in concert with Frank Parnell, a messenger, whose name is mentioned in the warrant for Sullivan's arrest and others not yet apprehended.

Jail Sentence

wife, Lillian P. Riley, should not be granted.

Mrs. Riley testified that in 1917 she was granted a decree in divorce proceedings brought on three counts, non-support, intemperance and cruel and abusive treatment, and at that time the court ordered the husband to pay $5 a week for the support of his two minor children, but he failed to comply with the order. Witness stated that her husband gave her $8 a week for some time and then dropped his payments to $5 a week and later to $4 and since August 23, 1919 he has not made one payment.

When questioned Riley stated that he was 20 weeks without work and now his weekly wage is but $17.50 and he has all he can do to look after himself. Questioned by the court, Riley stated he smokes cigars and goes to "movies" and dances occasionally.

"You find time and money to go to theatres and dances and to smoke cigars, while you also dress pretty well, but you cannot provide for your two children, and you are showing no disposition to comply with the order of the court," said his Honor, when Riley stated he was willing to give $4 a week towards the support of his family. Riley said that amount was as much as he could afford to give. He was then turned over to a deputy sheriff and taken to the Cambridge jail.

The Electric Warming Pad

Chases Chills

Imagine a light, soft, woolly, eiderdown blanket, 15 inches long and 12 inches wide, which maintains an even, soothing heat, and you have a good mental picture of this pad.

Electric Warming Pads are in use in hundreds of Lowell homes where the leaky, unreliable hot water bag was formerly tolerated.

Connects to any lamp socket. Is twice as large as the ordinary water bag or bottle and weighs only 1-3 as much.
